Hidden Bomb Damages Pentagon Restroom

WASHINGTON (AP) — A bomb exploded in a restroom at the Pentagon early today, blew out two interior walls and sent tons of water from broken pipes gushing through offices and a shopping concourse.

An antiwar organization claimed responsibility for the blast.

Few workers were in the area at the time and officials said this prevented injuries.

Police aided by a dog specially trained to sniff out explosives continued an exhaustive search of the sprawling military headquarters complex even as the Pentagon's 28,000 employees showed up for work six hours later. No more bombs were found.

The fourth-floor women's washroom was demolished—fixtures were shattered, the ceiling caved in and a 2½-foot hole blasted through the floor.

Most of the damage from the blast was confined to the bathroom area.

Despite the problems, Brig. Gen. Daniel James said, "it's business as usual today." James is the deputy assistant secretary of Defense for public affairs.

The restroom is located on the Pentagon's E-ring, the outermost of five rings, in the five-sided building.

FBI agents sifted through the rubble, looking for clues and James said that until the investigation is completed they were not "prepared to say what type of explosive device" was used.

The explosion came six hours before stringent security provisions, requiring inspection of all packages and briefcases brought into the Pentagon, the world's largest office building, were to have gone into effect because of planned antiwar demonstrations in Washington.

The Defense Department said the scene, in a nonrestricted area, is two full city blocks away from the office of Air Force Secretary Robert C. Seamans Jr. in the building that covers more than 30 acres.

Master Sgt. Jack Pickrell was one of 10 persons working in the Air Force message center 300 feet down the corridor at the time of the blast.

"You could smell the powder," he said, indicating the blast was caused by some type of explosive powder. He said dust in the corridor was so thick he had trouble finding the restroom to see if anyone was inside. No one was.

"You could actually feel the building shake," said Capt. William F. Kelly, also working in the message center. "As soon as it went off, people in the message center rushed into the hall and saw what looked like a big fog bank coming down the corridor."

At 1:05 a.m., five minutes after the blast, a caller identifying himself as "The Weatherman," told the New York Post:

"We have just bombed the office of the secretary of the Air Force in the Pentagon."

A note found in a pay-phone booth near the Post building in New York said the blast was in retaliation to U.S. bombing in Vietnam.

Similar telephone calls went to The New York Times and radio station WBCN-FM in Boston.

An organization known as the "Weather Underground" claimed responsibility for the March 1, 1971, U.S. Capitol bombing that caused $200,000 in damages. Most of the Capitol damage was in an ornate restroom.

The Army turned a specially trained German shepherd dog loose in the Pentagon this morning to sniff out explosives.

"It's going to be business as usual this morning, but we are going to check packages," said Gen. James. The package-inspection rule was imposed shortly after the Capitol bombing but was suspended last January. An order went out last Tuesday to reinstate the rule this morning.

Officials said some sensitive computers in nearby offices may have been damaged.

HHH, McGovern Schedule Debate Before June 6

By BILL STALL
Associated Press Writer

Sens. Hubert H. Humphrey and George McGovern have agreed to a series of face-to-face televised debates before their clash in the crucial June 6 California primary.

The two Democratic presidential contenders were in the West Coast today—Minnesota's Humphrey taking a "rest" day in California while South Dakota's McGovern campaigns in Oregon for votes in that state's primary next Tuesday.

In Los Angeles, tentative debate negotiations began from the Humphrey and McGovern headquarters, a block and a half apart on Wilshire Boulevard.

Humphrey suggested three debates, but that and other arrangements were open to negotiations.

Humphrey challenged McGovern Thursday as the Minnesotan formally launched his California stretch drive. The winner of the California primary takes all of the state's 271 delegates to the Democratic National Convention.

McGovern was in Los Angeles when he heard of Humphrey's proposal and declared, "I readily accept."

"Many months ago, at the beginning of this presidential campaign, I publicly challenged all the other presidential candidates to a face-to-face debate," McGovern said as he boarded a plane for Portland, Ore. "I think that is the best way to discuss the issues and interests to the people."

McGovern made a brief stop in Los Angeles to receive the endorsement of the widow of Martin Luther King Jr. McGovern's hopes for winning California depend in part on his drawing power among the minorities, primarily blacks and Mexican-Americans, and of the "blue collar" working man—always considered major sources of strength for Humphrey.

Speaking before some 3,000 high school students at a mock convention in Portland Thursday night, McGovern called for rationality and restraint in the Democratic campaign.

He said he had been the victim of distortions on issues which "touch the deepest passions and beliefs." Although his prepared text mentioned drugs and abortions, he made no mention of those issues in the speech as delivered.

In West Virginia, virtually complete returns from that state's May 9 primary gave 20 of West Virginia's 35 seats at the Democratic convention to delegates who had announced support for Humphrey.

Delegates supporting McGovern won seven seats and backers of Sen. Edmund S. Muskie, D-Maine, three, with uncommitted delegates ahead in five races.

Lebanon Mayor Heads Regional Commission

LEBANON, Ohio (AP)—Lebanon Mayor Lou Romohr has been elected chairman of the Warren County Regional Planning Commission.

Romohr was selected Thursday to replace Clarence Motz who submitted his resignation because he said he is leaving the area. Motz also has tendered his resignation as City Manager of nearby Mason.

Romohr will assume the chairman's post May 31.

Eye Red Shift Of Combat Unit

May Give Boost To Hue Campaign

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Hanoi military command appears to be pulling an army division out of Northern Laos in preparation for a crucial battle in South Vietnam.

U.S. Defense officials report that elements of the 316th North Vietnamese Infantry Division have been withdrawn from a secondary campaign in the Laotian Plain of Jars, perhaps to provide a homeland reserve for forces expected to thrust at Hue.

The 325th Division, only home-based enemy combat division remaining in reserve in North Vietnam, is reported poised along the demilitarized zone separating the two Vietnams.

U.S. officials said return of the 316th from Northern Laos might permit the enemy to send the 325th to South Vietnam to join three other divisions in attacking Hue, possibly the most important enemy objective in the seven-week-old offensive.

Defense leaders anticipate the North Vietnamese may launch their assault on Hue at any time.

Although there are major fights going on or in prospect in other areas of South Vietnam, the battle for Hue is looked upon as one likely to go a long way toward deciding the final outcome of North Vietnam's offensive, believed aimed at shattering the South Vietnamese army.

"The battle of Hue will last days, and possibly weeks, and may be the most brutal battle ever fought in South Vietnam," said one senior U.S. officer.

He forecast that the North Vietnamese may hurl 100 or more tanks at South Vietnamese defenders in the battle for the old imperial capital of Vietnam, which American officials feel has psychological and symbolic significance beyond most other enemy objectives.

Passengers, Crew Escape Jetliner Crash

Stories Conflict On Whether Emergency Declared

FORT LAUDERDALE, Fla. (AP) — Passengers and crew members scrambled to safety from the blazing wreckage of an Eastern Airlines DC9 jetliner Thursday as firemen sprayed the broken body of the plane with foam.

Six passengers and four crew members were on board when the plane crashed on landing at Fort Lauderdale International Airport. The captain and one stewardess suffered fractured vertebrae, airline spokesmen said, but the first officer, six passengers and a second stewardess escaped injury.

The plane was making a scheduled stop en route from Miami to Cleveland when it crash-landed in a severe rainstorm.

The tail section broke off on impact and the fuselage skidded another 300 yards down the runway, strewn with wheels.

Dock Union Kickbacks Charged

BALTIMORE (AP) — A regional vice president of the International Longshoremen's Association and the president of the ILA's local 829 have been charged with taking more than $10,000 in kickbacks to overlook violations in a labor contract.

The U.S. District Court here issued the charges Thursday after a federal grand jury handed down a 76-count indictment in the alleged conspiracy which also included five other union officials and members.

The indictment charges that the union officials conspired with two local companies to use non-union workers in packing and unpacking shipping containers, without having to pay fines specified by the contract.

John Kopp the vice president of the Atlantic Coast District of the ILA and a trustee of the pension fund, was accused of accepting bribes from a freight forwarder.

Willis Schonowski, president of Local 829, one of the largest in Baltimore, is charged with taking kickbacks from two separate warehouse companies.

Four other ILA members and an investigator employed by the Joint Steamship Trade Association-International Longshoremen's Association Pension Fund also were named.

They are: John P. Roberts, the business agent of Local 953 and treasurer of Baltimore's District Council; Richard Hughes, the container operations representative employed by the joint council; and union members, Eugene Hurley, John Calk and John Shade.

Maurice Burman, president of the Baltimore Security Warehouse, was named as an unnamed co-conspirator.

GRAND OPENING — Circleville Mayor Frank Barnhill snips red, white and blue tape to allow visitors to enter the grand opening of the local office of the U.S. Army recruiting service on E. Main St. about 1:15 p.m. Thursday.

Commander Robert Self, commanding officer of a high school Navy ROTC unit in Washington C.H.; SFC Jim Wolfe, assistant area commander for central Ohio; SSG Barbara Vasquez, Women's Army Corps commander for central Ohio; SGT Lonnie Robertson, unit of choice from 4th Infantry; Susan Conway, of the advertising information office, and several local people.

Hand-To-Hand Fighting Seen In Some Areas

SAIGON (AP) — Some 2,000 North Vietnamese supported by seven medium tanks assaulted an outer defense of Kontum, in the central highlands, in five waves Thursday night, but South Vietnamese forces and American aircraft drove them back, spokesmen reported today.

The enemy infantrymen drove to within two miles of the provincial capital, and at times the fighting was hand-to-hand. But it appeared to be a probe or show of strength, like a similar attack last Sunday, rather than an assault to capture the city.

South Vietnamese spokesmen reported 92 of the attackers killed, many of them by the U.S. F4 Phantoms and B52 bombers that supported the defenders. They said three Saigon troops were killed and seven were wounded, but the casualties were believed to be higher.

Spokesmen said seven T54 medium tanks were supporting the North Vietnamese but remained about three miles back. One was reported knocked out by a U.S. gunship.

An hour before dawn, the North Vietnamese troops pulled back after eight hours of fighting, spokesmen said. Field reports said the attack was made on positions less than two miles northwest of the city, the same sector that was the target last Sunday.

These reports said the first wave detonated antipersonnel claymore mines sowed to guard the perimeter, and the steel fragments thrown out by the mines "decimated" the attackers.

In the air war against North Vietnam, the U.S. Command announced that two Navy F4 Phantoms from the carrier Midway shot down two MIG19 interceptors Thursday 35 miles northeast of Hanoi.

The North Vietnamese jets came up from the Kep Air Base to challenge U.S. bombers attacking the northeast railway between Hanoi and China. The Phantoms were escorting the bombers.

U.S. planes flew about 250 strikes against targets in North Vietnam Thursday and another 250 today, informed American sources said.

Pilots reported flying through heavy fire from antiaircraft missile and artillery batteries. Radio Hanoi claimed five American jets were shot down Thursday, but the U.S. Command's announcement made no mention of any losses.

Only mortar shells had been fired at An Loc Wednesday night, giving rise to speculation that the North Vietnamese

Wife Says Wallace Takes Paralysis As Challenge

SILVER SPRING, Md. (AP) — In his wife's eyes, George C. Wallace is a scrapper who may walk again just because his doctors tell him there isn't much chance of it, but who "doesn't need a pair of legs to use his mind or speak out and say the things people want to hear."

"The thing about George," said Cornelia Wallace, "is that he must have a challenge and what God has given him is the challenge of his life."

The operation to remove that bullet will probably come in a week to 10 days, doctors said Thursday, but it will be at least two or three months before Wallace is able to get around much.

Dr. James Galbraith, University of Alabama neurosurgeon on the medical team, said Wallace was "resting well and feeling a little better" Thursday.

Wallace volunteers opened an office in Holy Cross Hospital where he is being cared for to handle the deluge of mail and flowers. The bouquets, however, became so numerous that they asked area florists not to deliver any more.

Arthur Herman Bremer, 21, who is accused of shooting Wallace, remains under tight security at the Baltimore County Jail in Towson, Md. Bremer is charged with four counts of assault with intent to kill and is being held under $200,000 bond.

No Progress Seen In Norwood Walkout

CINCINNATI (AP)—No progress continues to be seen in negotiations between striking Local 674 of the United Auto Workers and the General Motors Assembly Division in nearby Norwood.

Another round of talks was scheduled for today. Bargaining lasted about four hours Thursday.

About 4,000 members of the UAW local walked out April 8 in a dispute over assembly line speed, and manpower reductions.

Already he has begun to meet it, Mrs. Wallace told The Associated Press in an interview. And if the final verdict from his doctors is a probable lifetime of paralysis, she said, "he will take that as a challenge to show them they're wrong."

The 52-year-old Alabama governor, a candidate for the Democratic presidential nomination, was shot down in an assassination attempt at Laurel, Md., on the eve of Maryland's presidential primary.

He won that election Tuesday and the Michigan primary the same day. But a .38-caliber pistol bullet which struck his spine left him, temporarily at least, without the use of his legs.

Ocean Liner Bomb Threat Apparently Hoax

By RODNEY PINDER
Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP) — The Queen Elizabeth 2 and her 2,350 passengers and crew members steamed on across the Atlantic toward Europe today, apparently safe despite a bomb threat demanding $350,000 ransom.

British Army bomb disposal experts parachuted to the British liner in mid-Atlantic Thursday, did not find the six bombs which an anonymous telephone caller in New York said had been planted aboard.

The bomb threat appeared to be a hoax, although the president of the Cunard Lines' American subsidiary, Richard Patton, said: "The danger is not over, but lessened."

"I never really believe that there were any bombs on board," Patton added, "but we will continue to take every precaution."

The 65,000-ton pride of Britain's merchant fleet is due in Cherbourg on Saturday and in Southampton Sunday morning. Most of her 1,500 passengers are vacationing Americans.

The caller to Cunard's New York office had warned the bombs would be set off by two men on board unless the ransom was paid. He said the bombers were a terminal cancer patient and an ex-convict and both were willing to die to carry out the threat.

Cunard assembled the money in small bills and stored it at a bank near the line's office on Fifth Avenue. But a second call promised by the extortionist to give payment instructions never came.

The caller, who Cunard said spoke with an American accent, telephoned his threat Wednesday afternoon. The QE2 had left New York Monday and was halfway home.

Cunard spokesmen said they had received many false bomb threats before. But this time the caller gave technical details of the ship that aroused concern. By noon Thursday, the line and authorities on both sides of the Atlantic decided the threat must be treated seriously.

The line said the ship's watertight doors were slammed shut as soon as the bomb threat became known aboard ship.

U.S. Defense officials report that elements of the 316th North Vietnamese Infantry Division have been withdrawn from a secondary campaign in the Laotian Plain of Jars, perhaps to provide a homeland reserve for forces expected to thrust at Hue.

The 325th Division, only home-based enemy combat division remaining in reserve in North Vietnam, is reported poised along the demilitarized zone separating the two Vietnams.

U.S. officials said return of the 316th from Northern Laos might permit the enemy to send the 325th to South Vietnam to join three other divisions in attacking Hue, possibly the most important enemy objective in the seven-week-old offensive.

Defense leaders anticipate the North Vietnamese may launch their assault on Hue at any time.

Although there are major fights going on or in prospect in other areas of South Vietnam, the battle for Hue is looked upon as one likely to go a long way toward deciding the final outcome of North Vietnam's offensive, believed aimed at shattering the South Vietnamese army.

"The battle of Hue will last days, and possibly weeks, and may be the most brutal battle ever fought in South Vietnam," said one senior U.S. officer.

He forecast that the North Vietnamese may hurl 100 or more tanks at South Vietnamese defenders in the battle for the old imperial capital of Vietnam, which American officials feel has psychological and symbolic significance beyond most other enemy objectives.

Youth Is Drowned In Hancock County

FOSTORIA, Ohio (AP)—Dan Joe Cole, 16, drowned in a Hancock County farm pond Thursday while he and a group of classmates at Arcadia High School were testing a boat they made in an industrial arts class.

Cole went under after he and the other students had jumped into the water.

Ocean Liner Bomb Threat Apparently Hoax

By RODNEY PINDER

Associated Press Writer

LONDON (AP)—The Queen Elizabeth 2 and her 2,350 passengers and crew members steamed on across the Atlantic toward Europe today, apparently safe despite a bomb threat demanding $350,000 ransom.

British Army bomb disposal experts parachuted to the British liner in mid-Atlantic Thursday, did not find the six bombs which an anonymous telephone caller in New York said had been planted aboard.

The bomb threat appeared to be a hoax, although the president of the Cunard Lines' American subsidiary, Richard Patton, said: "The danger is not over, but lessened."

"I never really believe that there were any bombs on board," Patton added, "but we will continue to take every precaution."

The 65,000-ton pride of Britain's merchant fleet is due in Cherbourg on Saturday and in Southampton Sunday morning. Most of her 1,500 passengers are vacationing Americans.

The caller to Cunard's New York office had warned the bombs would be set off by two men on board unless the ransom was paid. He said the bombers were a terminal cancer patient and an ex-convict and both were willing to die to carry out the threat.

Cunard assembled the money in small bills and stored it at a bank near the line's office on Fifth Avenue. But a second call promised by the extortionist to give payment instructions never came.

The caller, who Cunard said spoke with an American accent, telephoned his threat Wednesday afternoon. The QE2 had left New York Monday and was halfway home.

Cunard spokesmen said they had received many false bomb threats before. But this time the caller gave technical details of the ship that aroused concern. By noon Thursday, the line and authorities on both sides of the Atlantic decided the threat must be treated seriously.

The line said the ship's watertight doors were slammed shut as soon as the bomb threat became known aboard ship.

pieces of landing gear and chunks of wreckage in its wake.

Officials said reports the captain radioed for an emergency landing were "absolutely erroneous."

However, law enforcement officers and airline employees with access to radio equipment said the pilot had declared an emergency.

Crash crews reached the burning fuselage within minutes, and although the outside was completely charred, sheriff's deputies said the interior was "pretty much intact."

Eastern spokesmen said Capt. W. C. Kennedy of New York and stewardess Patricia Kennedy of Miami would "probably require hospitalization" for their back injuries. The two are not related.

The other crew members were first officer G. K. Mattis of New York and stewardess Mary Jones of Miami.

Accelerator Sticks; Man Injured
Kenneth Hardbarger, 21, Route 1, Ashville, complained of right knee pains following his single car accident on the Circleville-Lockbourne Road 8:30 a.m. Friday.

According to Deputy Sheriff Bob Hoover, Hardbarger was northbound on the road when his car's accelerator stuck to the floorboard.

Tiger Band Awards Night Attended By 350 People

An estimated 350 parents, students and boosters attended the annual Tiger Band Awards night Thursday presided over by Edith Grigg, president of Circleville Band Boosters.

Gary Dean, director of ficers and the many parents who helped make "this year a great one."

Mrs. Grigg thanked her of musical activities at Circleville High School had film taken during the year which displayed the excellence of the color guard, Tigerettes, majorettes and field commanders. Dean said the band's success in sound and spirit was due to the high attitudes and desire of the entire band through the cooperation of all extra units and band members with the director.

Marsha Hoffman, captain of the Tigerettes, presented a gift of appreciation to their adviser, Miss Linda Steck, who worked very hard with the girls to make the first year of the unit a great success.

Awards were presented to all band members who participated in all rehearsals and performances. Special Awards were presented the following students for outstanding performance, displaying excellent leadership qualities and great band spirit:

City Court Sentences Local Drivers

Two drivers, charged with driving while intoxicated, received identical sentences in Municipal Court by Judge Sterling Lamb.

Both Randall Valentine, 28, Morris Trailer Court, and Randall L. Knece 20, Adelphi, were fined $150 and costs, sentenced to 30 days in the Pickaway County jail with 27 days suspended, and had their licenses suspended for 6 months. Both licenses will be returned after 30 days if the men prove financial responsibility.

Tenlie Nixon, 41, Route 2, Kingston, was fined $25 and costs for reckless operation.

William Blair, 20, Route 1, Williamsport, forfeited $60 bond for reckless operation.

Terry Ritchie 19, Route 5, was levied a $25 suspended fine for driving without a valid operator's license.

Barbara Fuller, 19, Ashville was levied a $25 fine for the same charge with $10 suspended.

Wayne Hansen, 38, Route 3, and Gordon Swackhammer, 57, 458 E. Franklin St., were given $15 and costs fined for failing to yield the right of way.

Martha Garrett, 39, 371 Ray Ave., forfeited $29 bond for speeding 75 miles per hour in a 60 zone.

James Neal, 155 Nicholas Drive, forfeited $50 bond for consuming alcohol in a motor vehicle.

pieces of landing gear and chunks of wreckage in its wake.

Officials said reports the captain radioed for an emergency landing were "absolutely erroneous."

However, law enforcement officers and airline employees with access to radio equipment said the pilot had declared an emergency.

Crash crews reached the burning fuselage within minutes, and although the outside was completely charred, sheriff's deputies said the interior was "pretty much intact."

Eastern spokesmen said Capt. W. C. Kennedy of New York and stewardess Patricia Kennedy of Miami would "probably require hospitalization" for their back injuries. The two are not related.

The other crew members were first officer G. K. Mattis of New York and stewardess Mary Jones of Miami.

Accelerator Sticks; Man Injured

Kenneth Hardbarger, 21, Route 1, Ashville, complained of right knee pains following his single car accident on the Circleville-Lockbourne Road 8:30 a.m. Friday.

According to Deputy Sheriff Bob Hoover, Hardbarger was northbound on the road when his car's accelerator stuck to the floorboard.

The car sustained heavy right side damage.

The doors seal off the watertight compartments in which the ship is divided to limit damage. Experts said it would take major bomb damage to at least two compartments to endanger the ship.

"However, with any bomb there is clearly a risk of fire," said one Ministry of Defense official.

The ministry put four bomb disposal experts and their equipment aboard a Royal Air Force transport and sent them out to parachute down to the ship. Another RAF plane went along as a mobile communication station.

As the crew began searching the huge ship and her many cabins and compartments, the QE2's 60-year-old skipper, Capt. William J. Law, announced the bomb threat to passengers over the intercom, and the vessel's powerful propellers stopped churning about 3:30 p.m. She was then about 500 miles northwest of the Azores.

"There was no panic," passenger Sterling Hixson of Bountiful, Utah, told the Salt Lake City Tribune in a ship-to-shore telephone call. "It was very quiet. Some people mentioned the Titanic."

"The captain had the ship orchestra entertaining us and announced that ransom money had been collected and would be paid."

"The captain told us over the intercom that other ships in the area were maneuvering in case the bomb threat was real and not a hoax."

A lifeboat drill was held and the ship's medical personnel discreetly scanned the passengers for anyone showing signs of being in the last stages of cancer.

The RAF plane flew over shortly after 6 p.m. and parachuted the bomb experts and their equipment, and the liner lowered a launch to fish them out of the sea.

Field reports said 20 South Vietnamese troops were killed and 100 were wounded, while 25 enemy were killed in scattered ground fighting.

The South Vietnamese relief column that has been moving up Highway 13 for weeks was reported still within 2½ miles of An Loc.

Field reports from the northern front below the demilitarized zone said 300 North Vietnamese troops were spotted in the open Thursday about seven miles southwest of the citadel in Hue. All available artillery was directed against them, and South Vietnamese bombers also were called in to attack.

U.S. military sources disclosed that the air and naval buildup to counter the North Vietnamese offensive continued with the arrival at Bien Hoa Air Base, 15 miles northeast of Saigon, of between 30 and 40 A4 attack planes forming two Marine squadrons.

Two-foot-square chunks of clay brick were strewn about the Pentagon's 10th corridor in the E-Ring. The plaster-and-brick walls from the public restroom were blown into the corridor, which was flooded with an inch of water from broken pipes.

A 30-foot section of the wall in the corridor was blown into the hallway.

Nearly windows were shattered. FBI agents were dusting the wreckage for fingerprints.

Pickrell speculated the explosive may have been planted in a toilet; one of the toilets was virtually disintegrated.

In a phone booth near The New York Post printing plant, a reporter found a letter, signed by "Weatherman Underground No. 12," saying:

"Today we attacked the Pentagon, the center of the American military command. We are acting at a time when growing U.S. air and naval shelling are being carried out against the Vietnamese; while U.S. mines and warships are used to block the harbors of the Democratic Republic of Vietnam; while plans for even more escalation are being made in Washington."

Firemen Fight CCA Boiler Room Blaze

City firemen have not released an estimate of damages in a fire that destroyed the electrical systems at Container Corporation of America's W. Mill St. plant 1:40 a.m. Friday.

Though the firemen battled the blaze for an hour and a half, they say the fire was contained to a boiler room. A short in the electrical circuitry is blamed.

Superpower Drama At Moscow Summit

By WILLIAM L. RYAN
AP Special Correspondent
Act II of a Nixonian drama of superpower politics is about to begin.
The drama started with the February presidential visit to Communist China. Now center stage will be occupied by the leaders of the two mightiest powers in history, each with the potential to blast the other into radioactive rubble. Watching the polite smiles and correct protocol, the world will be acutely aware of the towering wall of mistrust built between the American and Soviet systems through 55 years. Each side, approaching the talks, professes to espouse realism.

President Nixon said Feb. 9 in his State of the World message: "We do not, of course, expect the Soviet Union to give up its own interests. We do not expect to give up pursuing our own ... What we do expect is recognition of the fact that the general improvement in our relationship transcends in importance the kind of narrow advantages which can be sought only by imperiling the cooperation between our two countries."

Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, said in a major policy speech: "We approach the forthcoming Soviet-American talks from businesslike and realistic positions. We are fully aware of the importance of the state of Soviet-American relations for the life of the peoples of both countries as well as for the entire international situation."

But—
Nixon: "We are confronted by ambiguous and contradictory trends; the continuing buildup of Soviet military power is one obvious source of concern. Soviet attitudes during the crisis in South Asia have dangerous implications ..."

Brezhnev: "In our foreign and defense policies we cannot ignore the fact that a buildup of arms is being continued in a number of the imperialist states. The new budget ... in Washington provides for a considerable growth in military spending, especially on long-term programs of strategic armaments ... Retaining restraint and high vigilance, the Soviet Union pursues a resolute anti-imperialist course."

These statements predated a new situation in Vietnam and a crisis atmosphere produced by a North Vietnamese offensive. That sense of crisis was intensified less than two weeks in advance of Nixon's scheduled departure for Moscow when he announced drastic military measures to interdict the flow of Soviet military supplies to the Hanoi regime. American planes began sowing mines in the waters off North Vietnam, a direct challenge to Soviet shipping. The United States sharply escalated the bombing of the North and announced an intention to cut rail lines and highways leading from the China border.

The Russians could hardly have been surprised. The President's special envoy, Henry Kissinger, had given them an advance hint of what was to come, and so had Nixon's words themselves. He had displayed anger at the massive Soviet support to North Vietnam and at Brezhnev's vows to continue it.

The U.S. actions put it squarely up to the Russians whether, in such perilous circumstances, they wanted the summit to go forward as planned. There would be inherent in such a meeting now a political risk to the Russians in abandoning a brother Communist regime. The final decision seems to have been up to Brezhnev.

He has done the talking in the presummit exchange and that is significant. And he has full command of foreign policy. It was he who talked with Kissinger in mid-April.

As a lifelong Leninist, Brezhnev and his colleagues in the ruling Politburo are conditioned to regarding the United States as the bastion of imperialism, and imperialism as the most dangerous foe of a Soviet system they insist upon calling socialism.

This suggests a Brezhnev realism of power, the sort of realism that, in Soviet eyes, required extermination by military force of liberalization movements in Hungary and Czechoslovakia. It is the realism behind the Moscow notion of limited sovereignty, called "Brezhnev Doctrine" in the West. As Pravda put it, "No one will ever be allowed to wrest a single link from the community of Socialist states."

Hanging on to what it holds, Moscow warns Washington not to approach the summit "from a position of strength." Brezhnev has good reason for wanting less tense relations with Washington, but not at the cost of backing away in any significant measure from policies which in the Moscow view have been paying off.

Pre-empting such terms as peace and justice, Soviet propaganda claims that Moscow pursues a "Leninist, peace-loving internationalist policy" aimed at creating favorable conditions in the world for building socialism and communism and insuring solidarity of "all fighters against imperialism."

While this attests to the persistence of suspicion, there is much Brezhnev wants to talk to Nixon about. He has said he wants to discuss strategic nuclear weapons, space research, pollution, trade, and cultural and scientific-technical exchanges. Nixon wants to talk about such things, too. The President also wants to discuss the weighty and dangerous issues involved in the Middle East and Southeast Asia.

The question is: Can they get anywhere?

On Vietnam, the Russians insist they will continue sending aid to the Communist side in the war. That is a matter of practical power politics. To withdraw aid or to pressure North Vietnam would alienate Communists around the world. Unless the Russians are willing to use their influence in Hanoi, nothing much in the way of progress can be expected on this issue.

In the Middle East, Moscow has been deeply involved for more than 15 years. While the Russians tend to move warily to prevent a perilous showdown with the United States, they have in fact stepped up their involvement greatly in recent years. They show no inclination to pull back from what they probably consider important gains. No meaningful progress can be expected.

There is some expectation of limited progress on strategic arms limitation, possibly by way of limiting defensive and perhaps even offensive missiles.

President Nixon's statements have suggested a policy based on U.S. retention of an adequate nuclear deterrent, help to the defense capability of friendly nations, standing by treaty commitments and defense of U.S. interests, though short of using U.S. troops for direct military intervention. This leaves room for maneuver, because "interests" can be difficult to define.

The President has three central objectives in Moscow. He wants to complete work on issues where preliminary spadework has made final agreement possible. He wants to establish a political framework for dealing with dangerous disputes. He wants to explore prospects for future relations with Moscow. If he achieves these and reaches some limited agreements in the nonexplosive areas, the President probably will consider that he has made an important start on his road to "the era of negotiation."

Poker Pot Of $80,000 At Stake In Big Contest

By LEE GOULD
Associated Press Writer
LAS VEGAS, Nev. (AP) — Adrian "Texas Dolly" Doyle had two aces in the hole. He confidently shoved his last remaining chips, worth $7,500, into the pot.

Another Texan was even more confident. With only one card left to be dealt, John Moss of Odessa had three deuces. He matched the bet and the pot was $25,000.

Although the odds were 28 to 1 against it, the dealer turned over the final card. It was an ace. Doyle raked in the $25,000. The hand was only one of hundreds being dealt to eight professional gamblers in the so-called World Series of Poker here. Sometime in the next few days, one of the eight will break the other seven and collect $80,000.

Each paid $10,000 to join the annual game at Binion's Horseshoe Casino.

They sat at a kidney-shaped poker table. In front of each stood piles of black chips, each valued at $100.

The game is called "Hold'em" a variation of seven-card stud. Each player is dealt two cards, face down. Five more cards are dealt in the center of the table, face up. The winner is the gambler who produces the best five-card poker hand.

As each player loses his $10,000 stake, he drops out. Eventually, only two players will remain, with $80,000 on the table. They'll play until only one has all the money.

"This is a different kind of poker," one observer noted. "But these men know how to play it. They don't get tired and they can play for three days without getting absent-minded or groggy. They've been playing all their lives."

The players besides Moss and Doyle, who wouldn't disclose his hometown, are "Amarillo Slim" Preston; "Jolly" Roger Funsmith of Kansas City; Jack Strauss of Houston; "Pug" Pearson of Las Vegas; Addington Crandall of San Antonio and Jim Cassella of Las Vegas.

They leave the table only for minutes at a time to stretch their legs or to go to the restroom. There are no dinner breaks.

Bar girls deliver coffee, orange juice and milkshakes. "Only rarely will one drink any liquor. They wouldn't take a chance of making any mistakes because of booze," a casino official said.

"These men have known each other for years. They know how each other plays and their habits," the observer added.

Many English writers are popular in the United States. But few have the wide enthusiastic following of Jean Plaidy. She has written under several pseudonyms, and all her books sell well. Eighteen of them are listed in the Library's catalog.

Newest of her titles is "Murder Most Royal," a historical novel of Anne Boleyn and Catherine Howard. They were, of course, the two wives of Henry the Eighth who lost their heads. Anne Boleyn, who made high fashion by contriving wide sleeves to hide her "sixth finger" and wearing jewels at her neck to cover a birthmark, comes across in a most believable fashion. And Catherine Howard, she of the tomboy ways and the loose morals of her time, is equally credible.

Royalty, with all its pomp and glitter, has been the theme of many of Miss Plaidy's books. Writing as Eleanor Hibbert and as Victoria Holt, she has used kings and queens as central characters. Mary, Queen of Scots, Henry the Eighth, his wives, Robert Earl of Leicester, Sir Thomas More, Marie Antoinette, and Felipe II of Spain have all been highlighted. Some of these titles are "Captive Queen of Scots," "King's Pleasure," "Queen's Confession," "Spanish Bridegroom," "St. Thomas's Eve," and "Gay Lord Robert" are but a few.

As Victoria Holt, this remarkable woman writes sure-fire best sellers. "Bride of Pendorrie," "King of the Castle," "Kirkland Revels," "Menfreya in the Morning," "Mistress of Mellyn," and lately, "Shivering Sands" retain their popularity year after year. Miss Plaidy claims to be greatly influenced by the Victorian writers. She says, "I think people want a good story and this I give them. They like something which is readable and you can't beat the traditional for this. I write with great feeling and excitement and this comes over to the reader."

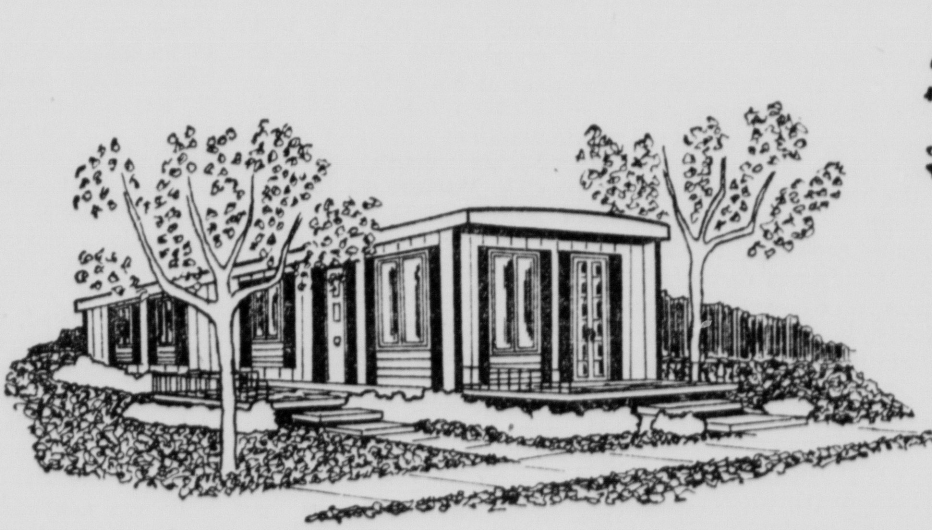

She is now 66 years of age, living in London. And Miss Hibbert-Plaidy-Holt continues to turn out books at a fast rate, each one eagerly gobbled up by her reading public.

To accommodate the growing interest in English history the Library has many other good novels and non-fiction background material. These books are at present in a special collection located in the Reference Room.

Act II of a Nixonian drama of superpower politics is about to begin.
The drama started with the

February presidential visit to Communist China. Now center stage will be occupied by the leaders of the two mightiest powers in history, each with the potential to blast the other into radioactive rubble. Watching the polite smiles and correct protocol, the world will be acutely aware of the towering wall of mistrust built between the American and Soviet systems through 55 years. Each side, approaching the talks, professes to espouse realism.

President Nixon said Feb. 9 in his State of the World message: "We do not, of course, expect the Soviet Union to give up its own interests. We do not expect to give up pursuing our own... What we do expect is recognition of the fact that the general improvement in our relationship transcends in importance the kind of narrow advantages which can be sought only by imperiling the cooperation between our two countries."

Brezhnev, general secretary of the Soviet Communist party, said in a major policy speech: "We approach the forthcoming Soviet-American talks from businesslike and realistic positions. We are fully aware of the importance of the state of Soviet-American relations for the life of the peoples of both countries as well as for the entire international situation."

But—
Nixon: "We are confronted by ambiguous and contradictory trends; the continuing buildup of Soviet military power is one obvious source of concern. Soviet attitudes during the crisis in South Asia have dangerous implications..."

Brezhnev: "In our foreign and defense policies we cannot ignore the fact that a buildup of arms is being continued in a number of the imperialist states. The new budget... in Washington provides for a considerable growth in military spending, especially on long-term programs of strategic armaments... Retaining restraint and high vigilance, the Soviet Union pursues a resolute anti-imperialist course."

These statements predated a new situation in Vietnam and a crisis atmosphere produced by a North Vietnamese offensive. That sense of crisis was intensified less than two weeks in advance of Nixon's scheduled departure for Moscow when he announced drastic military measures to interdict the flow of Soviet military supplies to the Hanoi regime. American planes began sowing mines in the waters off North Vietnam, a direct challenge to Soviet shipping. The United States sharply escalated the bombing of the North and announced an intention to cut rail lines and highways leading from the China border.

The Russians could hardly have been surprised. The President's special envoy, Henry Kissinger, had given them an advance hint of what was to come, and so had Nixon's words themselves. He had displayed anger at the massive Soviet support to North Vietnam and at Brezhnev's vows to continue it.

The U.S. actions put it squarely up to the Russians whether, in such perilous circumstances, they wanted the summit to go forward as planned. There would be inherent in such a meeting now a political risk to the Russians in elsewhere that Moscow was abandoning a brother Communist regime. The final decision seems to have been up to Brezhnev.

He has done the talking in the presummit exchange and that is significant. And he has full command of foreign policy. It was he who talked with Kissinger in mid-April.

As a lifelong Leninist, Brezhnev and his colleagues in the ruling Politburo are conditioned to regarding the United States as the bastion of imperialism, and imperialism as the most dangerous foe of a Soviet system they insist upon calling socialism.

This suggests a Brezhnev realism of power, the sort of realism that, in Soviet eyes, required extermination by military force of liberalization movements in Hungary and Czechoslovakia. It is the realism behind the Moscow notion of limited sovereignty, called "Brezhnev Doctrine" in the West. As Pravda put it, "No one will ever be allowed to wrest a single link from the community of Socialist states."

Hanging on to what it holds, Moscow warns Washington not to approach the summit "from a position of strength." Brezhnev has good reason for wanting less tense relations with Washington, but not at the cost of backing away in any significant measure from policies which in the Moscow view have been paying off.

Pre-empting such terms as peace and justice, Soviet propaganda claims that Moscow pursues a "Leninist, peace-loving internationalist policy" aimed at creating favorable conditions in the world for building socialism and communism and insuring solidarity of "all fighters against imperialism."

While this attests to the persistence of suspicion, there is

FDA Opens Up

Watching the Food and Drug Administration transform itself from one of the most secretive agencies in Washington to one of the most open — as the FDA says it is going to do — ought to be a refreshing performance.

The agency's general counsel, Peter Hutt, said the FDA's previous policy was to keep the confidential lid on more than 90 per cent of its documents. Under the new policy all but about 10 per cent would be available for public inspection.

Included in the material to be made available will be data on the safety of thousands of products, adverse reactions caused by drugs, results of factory and food plant inspections and letters from Congress and the business community.

To the skeptic who will say, "I'll believe it when I see it," the FDA can point to one of its initial moves toward near total disclosure. Weeks ago the agency made public a list of allowable food contamination limits, information which has been compiled since 1911 and never released until this year.

The new policy will not be universally approved. But as an example to other agencies of government, the 180-degree turn being made by the FDA on the subject of secrecy deserves praise.

Is McGovern Sincere?

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Senator George McGovern has accused his enemies of invoking scare tactics in the effort to head him off in recent primaries. He objects to people who quote his stands on such subjects as abortion and marijuana when the great questions of war and peace hang in the balance.

The Senator is so low-key in his general demeanor that one's first inclination is to write off the protest as the spontaneous reaction of a sincere man. But, on second thought, is McGovern as sincere as all that? He did say, after all, that he planned to go to the middle now that his need is for a vast bloc of "vital center" voters. And he mentioned the fact that he is a politician who must live by the political necessities.

In short, he is just as good or bad as the rest of his tribe. So what complaint does he have if other politicians, going by the necessities of the game, call attention to the statements he made on abortion, marijuana and busing when he was out to wean the liberals away from the Muskies and the John Lindseys in key liberal states?

As the rules of the political game go, it is legitimate to ask any candidate whether he still stands by his quoted opinions. McGovern is in favor of busing; in fact, he has said it is "essential" to achieve integration of the public schools. He has said that laws should not stand in the way of abortion if a woman decides upon it in consultation with her doctor. He has been giving amnesty on conscientious objection grounds to kids who fled the country to avoid the draft. He is against financial aid to parochial schools. He has advocated abolition of any criminal penalty for the use of marijuana. He does want to cut some $30 billion out of the defense budget. And, as I hope I have made plain in a previous column, he has a tax reform program that many reputable economists consider a sure route to long-term industrial stagnation.

If McGovern intends to backtrack on any of his old statements I, for one, would accept it as reasonable political behavior. Any democratic politician must, at least to some extent, be the agent of his constituency. On the other hand, I would consider it definitely admirable if McGovern were to say, "Damn you, I stand by my convictions even though you may use them against me." What I do find objectionable in McGovern's character is his desire to have it both ways. He wants to hang on to his opinions, but he doesn't want those opinions stressed in situations that might cause him political anguish.

The White House political strategists, in their own glibful way, have not chosen to throw McGovern's opinions on domestic matters in his face. The reason is that they see him as an easy target if the Democrats should nominate him to oppose President Nixon. They have been more worried about a Hubert Humphrey nomination. Up to a point the White House analysis has been sound. In a normal election year McGovern would offend a good portion of the white ethnic vote. Catholics, whether Irish or Polish, would go against him on the abortion issue. Families in the $12,000-and-over annual income range would be frightened by his tax program. Blue-collar workers in Michigan towns would not go for his attitude on busing. And it is difficult to see McGovern carrying any state below the Mason-Dixon Line.

A disaster to the Nixon Vietnamization program, however, would divert a lot of attention from McGovern's domestic views. And precisely because Nixon may fail in Vietnam it is important to let the voters know where McGovern stands on everything. If Nixon can't stop the Communists in the outer world, we would need a strong caretaker government that would be willing to spend billions for a Fortress America. McGovern, with his pacifistic personality, would hardly be the man for the job.

for their profits and problems, it might be a little better, but would be no solution to the problem.

Since the communists are expending so many thousands of dollars to ruin our youth by encouraging drinking, drug use, rebellion against the government — and any authority — and abuse of police officers, could not more effort be made to organize the many, many fine young people to combat these things?

None of us are happy about any war, except those who make large profits from them. If our youth would use all the energy, ingenuity and money that they now use in riots, demonstrations and destruction of property toward constructive efforts to cut down on deaths, not only on the highways, but from drugs and other killers, which take many more lives than the war in Vietnam, our country would surely benefit from their efforts. Our enemies can manufacture enough propaganda to ruin our influence in other countries without any American giving them material to use which is true.

The only realistic approach to keep from having drinking drivers on the highway is to keep from having drinkers.

SATURDAY'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day that brings varied and changing conditions. If you take in stride unexpected delays and look to the new and the untried, you have some very interesting situations in which you will benefit. Steer clear of taking unnecessary risks. Be formal.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Concentrate on doing those things you have neglected to do in the past and you get ahead much faster now. Contact higher-ups and gain their goodwill. An ally fails to keep a promise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You need a new approach in current activities and then you get far better results, be it in business or personal life. Be careful not to make any financial mistakes. Be alert.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have to use a more modern system for handling responsibilities if you want to get better results. Your methods are now antiquated, so forget them. Take it easy tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Meet with associates and talk over the best means for getting business matters to run more smoothly. Don't permit an insignificant person to bother you. Be poised.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are now able to handle a problem properly and get the right answer so that you gain the cooperation of co-workers for greater prosperity ahead. Show appreciation to one who has been helpful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can now engage in a new kind of entertainment you have always longed for. Taking any risks where your credit is concerned could be very dangerous now. Have fun tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A situation comes up at home that needs family discussion before it can be ironed out properly to the satisfaction of everyone concerned. Not a good day to make business plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Talk over a new plan with business experts and then with an associate before putting it in operation. Don't rely too much at this time on the advice of well-meaning friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Use your own good hunches and make big strides where important affairs are concerned. Know just where you are headed. Avoid an associate who is acting erratically at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have good judgment now and can contact others for cooperation in a plan you have, so don't wait on the advice of others. Don't neglect to handle important correspondence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have to meet certain responsibilities that require the aid of influential persons before going ahead with a plan you have in mind. Go out with mate tonight and have a delightful time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A good day to analyze with friends just where you are headed and come to a better understanding. Attend the social tonight and make a big impression. Show that you have poise.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

By LESTER L. COLEMAN, M.D.

I work in a factory and stand on my feet all day long. I developed what my doctor calls migratory phlebitis. He insists that I stop smoking. I can't see what smoking has to do with such a problem.

Mr. W.W.S., Conn.

Dear Mr. S.: The fact that you do not understand the relationship between tobacco and phlebitis does not mean that it does not exist. In fact, there is a most important relationship between the two and one which necessitates that you stop smoking immediately and completely.

Migratory phlebitis can be one of the early symptoms of a condition known as Buerger's disease. People who have this are highly sensitive to tobacco and develop inflammation of the linings of the blood vessels.

The term "migratory" simply means that the inflammation of the veins travels from one to another. Blockage of the arteries can also occur and can be responsible for very severe circulatory complications. When people who are advised to stop smoking and do, so completely and absolutely, they are amazed at how quickly their blood vessels reopen and how frequently they are relieved of these migratory attacks.

Associated with this condition of supersensitivity to tobacco can come spasmodic cramps of the leg muscles while walking. Coldness of the toes and the fingers can accompany this circulatory problem.

It must be reiterated that when you do stop smoking, and it is imperative that you do, even a single puff can be harmful. In fact, it has been shown that in a person sensitive to tobacco, a single puff of a cigarette can reduce the skin temperature of the toe by one degree. This means that even such slight exposure to cigarettes can cause spasm of the blood vessels.

It is further suggested that people with this condition should not stay in a smoke-filled room for a long period of time.

Now that you see the relationship, stop smoking. You will be glad that you did.

Can anything be done to improve the functioning of a kidney if it is not up to par?

Mr. R.C., Ariz.

Dear Mr. C.: The causes of kidney failure are many — dietary insufficiencies, some types of anemia, excessive alcohol, infections and inflammation may be responsible.

Modern scientific advances have progressed remarkably in handling simple and even chronic kidney failure. People who would have been destined to chronic invalidism can now have their bloodstream cleared of all toxic waste products by the dialysis technique.

NEW YORK (AP) — As memories of the Great Depression of the 1930s fade, Americans seem to be shedding almost all fears and inhibitions about personal debt.

Once, it may be recalled, the goal of millions of families was to pay off the bills. Only then, they felt, could they relax.

But in today's society it is entirely possible for a family to seek debt, to never be out of debt and to look forward to an entire life lived on credit. On graduating from college, in fact, thousands of young people are expected to pay off the loans their parents took out to finance their education.

Is this wrong? Financially? Morally? You'll receive differing views, but a widely held attitude is that the burden may look bigger than it really is.

The chances are that the youngster will have job stability and constantly rising income, it is argued. In addition he will have many years in which to finance or even refinance the debt.

The changed attitude toward borrowing is shown even more dramatically in housing. The very last source of funds for a Depression family was to remortgage the house. Today it is a commonplace practice.

A study by the Conference Board, a private research organization supported mainly by business, shows that new mortgage debt since 1959 has constantly exceeded the value of homes purchased.

This means, of course, that families are using their equity for other purposes, such as educational and medical expenses, investment in other assets, vacations, travel, debt consolidation.

In 1960, the Conference Board said, about $100 million was made available to families in this manner. By last year it had reached an annual rate of $24 billion.

Mrs. Florence Huber of Topeka, Kan., formerly of Circleville, was author of a gift book of poems entitled "Silver Petals". Her books were available nationwide.

The brick plant of the Ashville Fireproof Company, was to be sold at sheriff's sale on the premises at Bell's Siding.

Rheumatism of the heart caused the death of John Frederick Marion, 63, after a brief illness. A Circleville native, he was the father of two children, one, daughter Mrs. H. J. Quirk, who survived him.

A small gas explosion occurred in the culinary department of the Betz Restaurant at an early hour. Pots and skillets were blown off the range. Miss Lillian Himrod, who was standing near, had her hair singed. The explosion made a loud report, but there was no damage.

William Clifton, the contractor and carpenter, was struck and killed instantly when the automobile in which he was riding was hit by a traction car. He had just left the office of the Circleville Lumber Co. The traction car was in charge of Conductor Leslie Rhil and Motorman Harry Phebus.

A bronze tablet, was erected in the Hitler-Ludwig cemetery by the trustees in honor of the incorporators, only one of whom was living. A new chapel was dedicated on Decoration Day and the tablet, bearing the name of George W. Hitler of Circleville and others deceased, was erected.

Circleville High School's track team took Chillicothe's scalp with a score 66 to 51. First place winners for CHS were: McCrady, 100 and 220 yd. dash; Weaver, 440 yd. dash; Peters, 120 yd. high hurdles and shot put; Circleville's mile relay team completed the race in four minutes for first place.

County agent H. S. Lewis was looking for the runtiest pig in Pickaway County. The pig was to be killed and a post mortem examination made by Dr. H. E. Refensperger of the United States Department of Agriculture as the concluding feature of the program when the Baltimore and Ohio Swine Sanitation Special came to Orient and Mt. Sterling.

Charles Mead, who resided on Logan St., showed the Herald staff a single tulip stalk that contained five blooms. It was found among a beautiful display of tulips in the Mead dooryard.

It was announced that an oil and gas syndicate had leased more than 4,500 acres in the southern part of Franklin County, including the Hartman Stock farm, for the purpose of drilling for petroleum and natural gas. Some remembered 25 years earlier when Dr. Samuel B. Hartman made an initial attempt to locate gas or oil, but found salt water only at a depth of 3,700 feet.

FDA Opens Up

Watching the Food and Drug Administration transform itself from one of the most secretive agencies in Washington to one of the most open — as the FDA says it is going to do — ought to be a refreshing performance.

The agency's general counsel, Peter Hutt, said the FDA's previous policy was to keep the confidential lid on more than 90 per cent of its documents. Under the new policy all but about 10 per cent would be available for public inspection.

Included in the material to be made available will be data on the safety of thousands of products, adverse reactions caused by drugs, results of factory and food plant inspections and letters from Congress and the business community.

To the skeptic who will say, "I'll believe it when I see it," the FDA can point to one of its initial moves toward near total disclosure. Weeks ago the agency made public a list of allowable food contamination limits, information which has been compiled since 1911 and never released until this year.

The new policy will not be universally approved. But as an example to other agencies of government, the 180-degree turn being made by the FDA on the subject of secrecy deserves praise.

Is McGovern Sincere?

By JOHN CHAMBERLAIN

Senator George McGovern has accused his enemies of invoking scare tactics in the effort to head him off in recent primaries. He objects to people who quote his stands on such subjects as abortion and marijuana when the great questions of war and peace hang in the balance.

The Senator is so low-key in his general demeanor that one's first inclination is to write off the protest as the spontaneous reaction of a sincere man. But, on second thought, is McGovern as sincere as all that? He did say, after all, that he planned to go to the middle now that his need is for a vast bloc of "vital center" voters. And he mentioned the fact that he is a politician who must live by the political necessities.

In short, he is just as good or bad as the rest of his tribe. So what complaint does he have if other politicians, going by the necessities of the game, call attention to the statements he made on abortion, marijuana and busing when he was out to wean the liberals away from the Muskies and the John Lindsays in key liberal states?

As the rules of the political game go, it is legitimate to ask any candidate whether he still stands by his quoted opinions. McGovern is in favor of busing; in fact, he has said it is "essential" to achieve integration of the public schools. He has said that laws should not stand in the way of abortion if a woman decides upon it in consultation with her doctor. He has been giving amnesty on conscientious objection grounds to kids who fled the country to avoid the draft. He is against financial aid to parochial schools. He has advocated abolition of any criminal penalty for the use of marijuana. He does want to cut some $30 billion out of the defense budget. And, as I hope I have made plain in a previous column, he has a tax reform program that many reputable economists consider a sure route to long-term industrial stagnation.

If McGovern intends to backtrack on any of his old statements I, for one, would accept it as reasonable political behavior. Any democratic politician must, at least to some extent, be the agent of his constituency. On the other hand, I would consider it definitely admirable if McGovern were to say, "Damn you, I stand by my convictions even though you may use them against me." What I do find objectionable in McGovern's character is his desire to have it both ways. He wants to hang on to his opinions, but he doesn't want those opinions stressed in situations that might cause him political anguish.

The White House political strategists, in their own guileful way, have not chosen to throw McGovern's opinions on domestic matters in his face. The reason is that they see him as an easy target if the Democrats should nominate him to oppose President Nixon. They have been more worried about a Hubert Humphrey nomination. Up to a point the White House analysis has been sound. In a normal election year McGovern would offend a good portion of the white ethnic vote. Catholics, whether Irish or Polish, would go against him on the abortion issue. Families in the $12,000-and-over annual income range would be frightened by his tax program. Blue-collar workers in Michigan towns would not go for his attitude on busing. And it is difficult to see McGovern carrying any state below the Mason-Dixon Line.

A disaster to the Nixon Vietnamization program, however, would divert a lot of attention from McGovern's domestic views. And precisely because Nixon may fail in Vietnam it is important to let the voters know where McGovern stands on everything. If Nixon can't stop the Communists in the outer world, we would need a strong caretaker government that would be willing to spend billions for a Fortress America. McGovern, with his pacifistic personality, would hardly be the man for the job.

SATURDAY'S HOROSCOPE

GENERAL TENDENCIES: A day that brings varied and changing conditions. If you take in stride unexpected delays and look to the new and the untried, you have some very interesting situations in which you will benefit. Steer clear of taking unnecessary risks. Be formal.

ARIES (Mar. 21 to Apr. 19) Concentrate on doing those things you have neglected to do in the past and you get ahead much faster now. Contact higher-ups and gain their goodwill. An ally fails to keep a promise.

TAURUS (Apr. 20 to May 20) You need a new approach in current activities and then you get far better results, be it in business or personal life. Be careful not to make any financial mistakes. Be alert.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 21) You have to use a more modern system for handling responsibilities if you want to get better results. Your methods are now antiquated, so forget them. Take it easy tonight.

MOON CHILDREN (June 22 to July 21) Meet with associates and talk over the best means for getting business matters to run more smoothly. Don't permit an insignificant person to bother you. Be poised.

LEO (July 22 to Aug. 21) You are now able to handle a problem properly and get the right answer so that you gain the cooperation of co-workers for greater prosperity ahead. Show appreciation to one who has been helpful.

VIRGO (Aug. 22 to Sept. 22) You can now engage in a new kind of entertainment you have always longed for. Taking any risks where your credit is concerned could be very dangerous now. Have fun tonight.

LIBRA (Sept. 23 to Oct. 22) A situation comes up at home that needs family discussion before it can be ironed out properly to the satisfaction of everyone concerned. Not a good day to make business plans.

SCORPIO (Oct. 23 to Nov. 21) Talk over a new plan with business experts and then with an associate before putting it in operation. Don't rely too much at this time on the advice of well-meaning friends.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 22 to Dec. 21) Use your own good hunches and make big strides where important affairs are concerned. Know just where you are headed. Avoid an associate who is acting erratically at this time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22 to Jan. 20) You have good judgment now and can contact others for cooperation in a plan you have, so don't wait on the advice of others. Don't neglect to handle important correspondence.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 21 to Feb. 19) You have to meet certain responsibilities that require the aid of influential persons before going ahead with a plan you have in mind. Go out with mate tonight and have a delightful time.

PISCES (Feb. 20 to Mar. 20) A good day to analyze with friends just where you are headed and come to a better understanding. Attend the social tonight and make a big impression. Show that you have poise.

Speaking of YOUR HEALTH...

I work in a factory and stand on my feet all day long. I developed what my doctor calls migratory phlebitis. He insists that I stop smoking. I can't see what smoking has to do with such a problem.

Mr. W.W.S., Conn.

The fact that you do not understand the relationship between tobacco and phlebitis does not mean that it does not exist. In fact, there is a most important relationship between the two and one which necessitates that you stop smoking immediately and completely.

Migratory phlebitis can be one of the early symptoms of a condition known as Buerger's disease. People who have this are highly sensitive to tobacco and develop inflammation of the linings of the blood vessels.

The term "migratory" simply means that the inflammation of the veins travels from one to another. Blockage of the arteries can also occur and can be responsible for very severe circulatory complications. When people who are advised to stop smoking and do so, completely and absolutely, they are amazed at how quickly their blood vessels reopen and how frequently they are relieved of these migratory attacks.

Associated with this condition of supersensitivity to tobacco can come spasmodic cramps of the leg muscles while walking. Coldness of the toes and the fingers can accompany this circulatory problem.

It must reiterate that when you do stop smoking, and it is imperative that you do, even a single puff can be harmful. In fact, it has been shown that in a person sensitive to tobacco, a single puff of a cigarette can reduce the skin temperature of the toe by one degree. This means that even such slight exposure to cigarettes can cause spasm of the blood vessels.

It is further suggested that people with this condition should not stay in a smoke-filled room for a long period of time. Now that you see the relationship, stop smoking. You will be glad that you did.

Can anything be done to improve the functioning of a kidney if it is not up to par?

Mr. R.C., Ariz.

The causes of kidney failure are many — dietary insufficiencies, some types of anemia, excessive alcohol, infections and inflammation may be responsible.

Modern scientific advances have progressed remarkably in handling simple and even chronic kidney failure. People who would have been destined to chronic invalidism can now have their bloodstream cleared of all toxic waste products by the dialysis technique.

How Weather Looks Today

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Fair weather continues over Ohio. Clear skies were reported across the Buckeye State this morning. Temperatures were in the low to mid 50s and many sections were reporting ground fog, a typical weather occurrence in the spring and summer.

Clear skies and light winds during the spring and summer months allow for maximum cooling overnight. The temperature falls to the dew point or condensation point, and fog forms. The colder air always seeks the lowest areas; thus fog is found in the river valleys and low-lying areas.

The warmth of the morning sun quickly warms the atmosphere near the ground, and the fog dissipates, usually by mid morning.

Ohio's weather continues to be dominated by weak high pressure over the western Great Lakes and Mississippi Valley. An unstable air mass just to the east and a developing low pressure area over the southern Atlantic coast threaten to produce some showers over Ohio on Saturday however.

The most likely target for these showers would be southeastern Ohio, but with just a slight shift in the balance between the high to the west and the low to the southeast they could occur anywhere in the state... or nowhere.

Barring any unforeseen cloudiness or appreciable amounts of rainfall, temperatures are likely to be warm during the weekend. Readings should climb slowly into the 80s over most of Ohio and daytime highs should remain in the 80s through early next week before turning slightly cooler on Tuesday. Nighttime low readings will be about normal for late May, mostly in the 50s.

FORECAST
NORTHEAST INLAND, WEST CENTRAL, CENTRAL, SOUTHWEST, NORTHWEST INLAND — Mostly clear tonight, lows in the 50s. Saturday partly cloudy and warm, high in the 80s. Probability of precipitation 10 per cent tonight and 20 per cent Saturday.

Military radar that translates its target findings into audible signals can distinguish between men and women.

Letter To The Editor

Dear Editor:

Although this column has always been one of my favorite features in the HERALD, this is my first attempt to make a contribution. If I don't hurry, the issue involved will make my letter irrelevant.

We want to add our commendation for the recent editorial which appeared on the front page regarding the problem of drinking drivers.

One of the former writers asked for information as to what he could do to remedy the situation. May I be so bold as to make some suggestions — not just to him — but to everyone?

Since the President has set up a commission for a study of this serious problem, it seems that he should be the first one to set the good example of never drinking nor serving intoxicating beverages. His good example would surely influence some.

Then, if every United States citizen who considers himself a Christian and all others who want to keep drinking drivers off the highways would do likewise, surely a marked improvement would be seen immediately.

Also, if these same people, through legislation and the ballot box would undo the tragedy that they allowed to happen in the repeal of the 18th Amendment, still more could be accomplished. Surely no one who voted for repeal can still believe that it was the sensible thing to do when he sees the havoc that has been wrought upon our beloved nation. Those who extolled the merits of the revenue that the government would receive surely know by this time that millions more are spent in the effort to rehabilitate the thousands of alcoholics that are the result of repeal. Then, there are the millions spent on welfare and relief given to the families of these unfortunate alcoholics. (My husband was born and raised in Columbus, Ohio and he was 19 years old before he saw a man drunk on the street.)

If the breweries and buyers paid high enough taxes so that those of us who are so against drinking did not have to pay for their profits and problems, it might be a little better, but would be no solution to the problem.

Since the communists are spending so many thousands of dollars to ruin our youth by encouraging drinking, drug use, rebellion against the government — and any authority — and abuse of police officers, could not more effort be made to organize the many, many fine young people to combat these things?

None of us are happy about any war, except those who make large profits from them. If our youth would use all the energy, ingenuity and money that they now use in riots, demonstrations and destruction of property toward constructive efforts to cut down on deaths, not only on the highways, but from drugs and other killers, which take many more lives than the war in Vietnam, our country would surely benefit from their efforts. Our enemies can manufacture enough propaganda to ruin our influence in other countries without any American giving them material to use which is true.

The only realistic approach to keep from having drinking drivers on the highway is to keep from having drinkers.

SATELLITE BEACH, Fla. (AP) — It may be back to the old hitching post in this ocean-side community if Police Chief Jack Henderson has his way.

The reason is bikes, not horses. "I was looking at our larceny reports the other day," Henderson said, "and it suddenly dawned on me how to cut our bicycle theft rate by 85 per cent."

"It's like an old hitching post," he said. "You could lock the bike to it so the only way you could steal it would be to break the wheel off."

Gondola Car Derails
TIFFIN, Ohio (AP) — A railroad gondola car carrying 12 luxury automobiles derailed in the Seneca County community of Alvada Thursday, demolishing three of the autos and damaging two others.

Long, low; Colleen Justice, door and other players were Sue Graffis subbing for Mae Littler, Esther Picklesimer, yours truly and the hostess.

With all the rain last week it seems uncanny that Wednesday dawned wreathed in cool breezes and beautiful sunshine but there is a reason why it didn't dare do otherwise. You see, eighty-one Pickaway County and surrounding area women arose at the ungodly hour of someplace in the fiveish a.m. and readied themselves to board chartered buses at the fairgrounds for the annual County Extension Homemakers tour. If you have never gone on one of these tours you really should. The trip is always quite interesting but aside from that fact are the friendships formed and the delightful comradeship that exists among all those present; as well as the spirit of adventure and the little odd bits of information that can be learned.

For example, Helen Timmons says a person should always cut their toenails because it makes for more comfortable walking when on such an excursion; Emily Berry, bless her heart, knows the rest stops and how best to speed up the process (and if memory serves me right she is the lucky one whose hubby prepared her french toast that a.m.) Ruby Smith, an avid gardener, was most helpful in identifying the flora and fauna. The area of the tour covered from here to Millersburg and thence to Coshocton and thence to home. Gorgeous dogwood and redbud trees were abloom and in such abundance as to make one gasp with the beauty of it all. The Avling Woolen Mill and the Sharp Run Swiss Cheese plant provided much interest to the tourists. The guide at the cheese plant imparted the info that summer cheese is usually much more yellow than in the winter time because the cows are on pasture and are selective of their food which includes dandelions (just one of those things you might never know without reading this column). Roscoe Village, a restored canal town created lively interest and especially for the antique buffs. Many antiques were on display at the Williams house that several had not been acquainted with in their antique browsing before — lovely pieces. Many went aboard the canal boat anchored on the canal but unfortunately were unable to take the two mile ride since the boat was not operating until later in the day. As one might suspect the area is rich in actual history and folklore. On the route home just outside of Coshocton we had the opportunity to eyewitness the devastation laid waste to the land with strip mining done before laws were enacted making it mandatory to restore the land after stripping.

For the readers who might have missed the list of passengers that was in the Herald I submit them once more (there were two buses, by the way): Ruth Anderson, Marie Ankrom (your Darbyville writer), Isabel Badger, Mary Barr, Helen Beckman, Donna Beougher, Emily Berry, Agnes Brayshaw (Grandma B), Maxine Brigner (your friendly Darbyville grocer), Mrs. Doyle Calvert, Janet Carter and daughter Terry (Ron Greenwood's betrothed), Mary Clark (Commander), Pearl Cochenour, Ida Cook, Mable Cook, Oval Cook, Mrs. George Coon, Beulah Crawford, Mary Delong, Mary Denman, Yvonne Drake, Marvene Dudleson, Marabel Drummond, Louise Drummond, Grace Dumm, Eileen Easterday, Mrs. Robert Fetherolf, Betty Goeller, Srlee Grabill, Gladys Hedges, Roberta Hedges, Mrs. Kenneth Hidy, Garnet Howard, Hazel Hudson, Adella Huffman, Mrs. Ralph Hutchings, Evelyn Johnson, Virginia Kleinline, Martha Kimmel, Della Lemmings, Ethel Lane, Ernestine Lewis, Dorothy List, Linda Lovely, Barbara Marshall, Helen Martin, Ethel MaFarland, Emma MlGhee, Ann Morehart, Lillian Moss, Annie Mowery came from the northern part of the state to go), Helen Newlon, Penni Neilsen (our extension agent), Pat Norris, Muriel Ott, Opal Overly, Doris Parsons, Mary Peters, Mrs. Everett Phillips, Alva Rhinhart, Margery Rhinhart, Mae Ross, Gertrude Schleich, Fern Schwarz, Alice Scothorn, Betty Smith, Mrs. Ford Smith, Ruby Smith, Loraine Sowers, Grace Stout, Jean Thompson (hand-some Paul's mate) Helen Timmons (the toenail cutter), Norma Toland, Bessie Tustin, Eunice Walters, Nancy Warner, Mrs. Howard Weaver, Hazel Whitten, Wilhelmina Wolford Carolyn Young. The group devoured a sumptuous Amish noon meal at the home of Mrs. Roman Miller who caters to large groups. Getting together

such a tour is no small task and capably handling the arrangements on this and other similar tours was Mary Clark (dubbed Commander) with Penni Neilsen and Doris Parsons leading a helping hand. Many thanks, ladies, for a most enjoyable and informative day. When is the next one?

WHIS BOOSTER CORNER

Fifteen of 18 directors of the Westfall Booster Club attended the monthly meeting Wednesday evening in the multi-purpose room at Westfall High School. New officers assumed office for the ensuing year and they are Dale Smith, president; Jerry Newton, vice-president; Helen Eitel, 2nd v.p.; Daisy Rowland, secretary; Dave Long, treasurer. Mrs. Eitel pro-tem'd as secretary and gave last month's report and Long gave the treasurer's findings with both being approved. Appointed to the purchasing committee were Roger Newlon, Kenny and Bertha Rittinger; publicity and advertising committee is Eileen Easterday and Dick Summers. The president will announce other committees at a future meeting.

Mrs. Diane Smith advisor and Becky Nance, president of the Pep Club were present to make a request for members of the Pep Club to be sent to a camp at Bluffton College. After much serious discussion and consideration it was decided to abstain from sending anyone to camp this year and a form letter will be sent to all organizations apprising them of the action taken by unanimous decision. The Boosters are committed to aiding the band in the purchase of several new uniforms for the increase of members that will take place this fall as well as new overlays for the entire band. This is a considerable undertaking that will involve the expenditure of a large sum of "bread" (money, man, money) and needs the devoted support of all in the district. Directors present were: Maynard Marshall, Dave Long, Helen Eitel, Gene Schleich, Roger Newlon, Juanita Hanson, Dale Smith, Bertha Rittinger, Dixie Cummins, Richard S. Adams, Carl Hildenbrand, Carolyn Finch, Russell Shannon, Jerry Newton, and Ray Valone.

Protests Hit OSU, Kent ROTC Days

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Antiwar demonstrators clashed with police and roughed up a judge at Ohio State University and hurled bags of imitation blood at Kent State University Thursday while trying to disrupt ROTC ceremonies at the schools.

Police broke up both protests, carting some of the young people off to jail.

At Ohio State, campus police arrested six persons, three of them OSU students, while dispersing a crowd of about 150 demonstrators outside French Field House, where Corps Day ceremonies were being held.

Officers fired wooden pellets into the crowd, which responded by throwing rocks at police. Two officers received minor injuries.

Charges against those arrested—two of whom were local high school students, police said—ranged from using improper language to second-degree riot. All posted bond and were released.

Following the clash with police, a smaller group of demonstrators went to the university Law Building and entered a classroom where Columbus Municipal Judge G. W. Fais had just finished speaking.

Fais was escorted out of the building. He was pushed and struck on the arms and back along the way, but was not hurt.

The judge, himself, has been the object of protest on the campus for setting fines up to $150,000 for some people arrested in disturbances last week. The bonds later were reduced by a Common Pleas Court judge.

At Kent State, 10 people, eight of them KSU students, were arrested after a group entered the hall where a closed ROTC awards ceremony was under way and tossed bags of a liquid concocted from coffee, food coloring and flour.

Charges included malicious destruction of property, disrupting a lawful assembly, trespassing, verbal abuse of a policeman, petit larceny and assault and battery. All 10 were released on bond.

Few people ever get to see either ocean bordering these great United States but my good friend Mary Alice Greenwood has had the privilege now of dipping her "tootsies" in the Atlantic and Pacific — (the most recent one). She had the good fortune, once again, to have members of her DECA class win state honors that took them to the National DECA Leadership Conference held recently at Los Angeles, California. Their very busy schedule included making the scene at Disneyland, Universal Studios, Graumann's Chinese Theater (where to probably a bit of dismay the discovery was made that most stars have smaller feet than some of the rest of us). There was also one glorious night aboard the Queen Mary with everyone in formal attire. Lodgings were at the famous Biltmore Hotel located in the heart of downtown Los Angeles.

Bessie (Mrs. Darl) Miller entered Grant Hospital, Room 606 on Tuesday and was scheduled to undergo surgery today (Wednesday). She will be a patient for several weeks.

Daddy Darl's birthday was observed with a family dinner at the Miller country home a week ago Sunday. Wishing him well on his seventieth were Charlie and Esther Picklesimer and Faith Ann Lollipop, Brad Donna and Marci Thompson, Mike with Andy and Brent Stauffer, from Circleville by the way, Shirl and Helen Stant and Johnny Carl of Whisler, Larry and Judy Stant, Bob, Ginger and Erin Stant all of Roundtown, and coming down from Columbus were Kenny and Florence Andrick and Lisa and Ken with Connie Drum and their Jeff, Debbie and Jason.

Mother-Daughter Banquet Held By Saltcreek Club

Saltcreek Town and Country Junior Women's Club met recently at Pickaway Arms for its Mother-Daughter Banquet and installation of officers.

The evening's activities began with each member introducing her mother or daughter. Then all joined in praying "The Lord's Prayer." Ann Luckhart read the club pledge and state motto.

It was announced that the club won an Honor Roll citation for the year. Discussion was held concerning an amendment to the club constitution.

The club voted unanimously to support toll free service from Laurelville to Circleville. It was also voted that each member give $1 to Alan Strous, Barbara Bolender and Patricia Trax for their winning essays entitled "This Land Is Ours."

Officers installed for the coming club year are Mrs. Dennis Valentine, president; Mrs. Donald Maxson, vice president; Mrs. George Seimers, secretary and Mrs. Donald Huffman, treasurer.

Garden Club Sets Workshop

Pickaway County Garden Club will conduct a workshop 7:30 p.m. Tuesday at the home of Mrs. Theodore Huston, 235 Marshall Road.

Members are to bring materials to make arrangements for the June 6th Flower Show which is to be held at the Grange and 4-H building at the fairgrounds.

Instructors will be Mrs. John Eshelman and Mrs. Ned Harden.

Clifford Irving Group Files Suit Against IRS

NEW YORK (AP) — Author Clifford Irving, his wife Edith and his researcher, Richard Suskind—principals in the Howard Hughes autobiography hoax—have filed suit in U.S. District Court demanding more than $91,000 which they said was taken as "jeopardy assessments" by the Internal Revenue Service.

The IRS applied tax liens against the Irvings and Suskind last February, more than a month before they pleaded guilty to constructing a hoax in which McGraw-Hill Inc. paid out $750,000 for a bogus autobiography of Hughes, the billionaire industrialist.

Views On TV-Radio

By CYNTHIA LOWRY
AP Television-Radio Writer
NEW YORK (AP) — They have been putting a little sparkle into television's quiet spring nights lately with a "New York Playhouse" series focusing on the 1940s.

First there was a drama about a nuclear physicist dismayed by what he had helped create, followed by a memoir of the golden days of radio. Thursday night it was a retrospective view of the motion picture films out of Hollywood in that decade.

The producers of "Try to Remember" patched together bits from the old films along with some unremarkable comments by directors of some of the big box office movies of the period.

The program sought to trace the changing character of Hollywood films from the prewar to the postwar days. It was fuzzy at best. It actually served as a flimsy skeleton on which to place the bits and pieces from old movies and newsreels.

Considerable change, large and small, is in progress with television's established series beginning fall production.

Biggest change, sadly, will have to be made in NBC's "Bonanza." Executive Producer David Dortort must quickly find some way to fill the gap left by the sudden death of co-star Dan Blocker.

Sandy Duncan's "Funny Face," which had its run shortened due to the star's illness, will return to CBS as "The Sandy Duncan Show," with a new supporting cast and a radically revised format.

"The Dean Martin Show" on NBC will undergo a housecleaning of sorts—some executives of the network's affiliates complained about suggestive material. The occasional blue notes and jokes will be toned down, for one thing, and that weekly "family sketch" will be radically revised: Kay Medford and Lou Jacobi will play a married couple. New regulars will include Rodney Dangerfield, the "I Don't Get No Respect" comedian, Nipsey Russell and Dom DeLuise.

Ruth Buzzi will be just about the only original cast comedian left in NBC's "Laugh-In" except, of course Dan Rowan and Dick Martin. Departing are Alan Sues and Barbara Sharma. Lily Tomlin, who is so unhappy with her lot that she has started a lawsuit in an effort to break her contract, will appear in about one-third of the season's shows.

The annual Mother-Daughter Banquet of the Zion United Methodist Church was held on Thursday, May 11 at 6:30 p.m. in the social room of the church. The dinner was prepared by the ladies of the church and was served by the men.

The tables were decorated with pink, yellow, lilac and green pre-luminating and centered with a potted flower that was later used as door prizes.

The menu consisted of tomato juice, ham, potatoes, Au Gratin, peas, slaw, rolls and butter, jello salad, cake, coffee and tea.

At each place setting were homemade mints and nuts in cups and a miniature hydrangea flower in a pot made from sugar. These were all hand-made by Erma Darkes and were in a white pot with pink, yellow and lilac blooms. The cakes were also made by Mrs. Darkes with each individual piece centered with the same flowers.

Before the guests were seated they sang "Hello Mothers" and then "Hello Daughters," led by Dorothy Cook and accompanied by Richard Cook as pianist.

Goldie Hopper gave the invocation, followed by a Toast to the Daughters by Connie Edgington and a Toast to the Mothers by Carla and Colleen Edgington.

Following the dinner Dorothy Cook, President of the Christian

Women's Circle, welcomed all present and read the poem entitled "A Mother's Love" by Helen Steiner Rice. The playlet, "There Is Beauty All Around," written by Virgie Wean, was presented by the girls of the Junior Choir under the direction of Carol Higgins and accompanied by Linda Leatherwood.

In the playlet you visited a modest little cottage, a modern home and a palatial estate. The following songs were sung by the choir: "There Is Beauty All Around," "Beautiful Hands," "I Heard God Today" and "Child of the King."

Door prizes were then awarded to seventeen of the mothers and daughters present with Kelly Welsh drawing the numbers.

A potted plant was presented to Erma Darkes on behalf of the Christian Women's Circle for all the time she had given to the making of the table favors, mints and cakes.

The closing prayer was by Mae Alexander. There were one hundred and thirty mothers and daughters present and fifteen men who helped serve the banquet.

A very enjoyable evening was had by all who were in attendance.

The next meeting of the Christian Women's Circle will be held on June 8 that the church.

The Ashville Pythian Sisters held their annual inspection in the K.P. Hall on Tuesday, May 16. Inspecting Officer for the evening was District Deputy Mary Bigerton of Canal Winchester. Other distinguished guests introduced were Grand Senior Garnet Reichelderfer, Grand Trustee Leola Storts and Past Grand Chief Clara Cochran.

Initiated in the organization was Joseph C. Peters, Chancellor of Ashville Palmetto Lodge. Officers presiding during the evening were Most Excellent Chief Judy Campbell; Excellent Senior Ginny Rainey; Excellent Junior Janet Cline; Manager Pat Fortner; Treasurer Jean Schiff; Protector Janet McNeal; Guard Caroline Pritchard; Past Chief Shirley Little and pianist Gladys Rush.

Those in the Degree Staff were Madge Baum, Marilyn Sabine, Dorothy Cook, Shirley Rathburn, Pearl Fortner, Arlene Fortner, Sonia Seymour, Beverly Hoover, Becky Tosca, Betty Smith, Fern Lutz and Mary Helen Miller. All participating wore floor length formal.

The silver offering of the evening was given toward the Grand Chief's project at the Medina Home which is the refurbishing of the kitchen in

This Saturday, May 20, has been proclaimed Poppy Day by Mayor Harold Hartley and the women of the American Legion Auxiliary — mothers, wives, sisters and daughters of the men who fought in World War I, World War II, Korean War and the Vietnam Conflict — will again ask all Americans to wear these crepe paper poppies which have been made by the disabled veterans of these wars.

Wearing this little red flower will help us rekindle the spirit of patriotism and service to our country which is needed as much now as ever before in our history. As long as such a feeling remains in American hearts, we need not fear for the future of our nation. We will remain assured that the great majority of our citizens remain ready to serve and sacrifice for their country.

The Everfaithful Class of the Zion United Methodist Church will meet at the home of Jeraldine Leatherwood on Friday evening, May 19 at 7:30 p.m. for their monthly meeting.

Each one attending is to bring a hat with them for selling. Assisting will be Georgia Myers and Virgie Wean.

The annual Mother-Daughter Banquet of the Zion United Methodist Church was held on Thursday, May 11 at 6:30 p.m. in the social room of the church. The dinner was prepared by the ladies of the church and was served by the men.

The tables were decorated with pink, yellow, lilac and green pre-luminating and centered with a potted flower that was later used as door prizes.

The menu consisted of tomato juice, ham, potatoes, Au Gratin, peas, slaw, rolls and butter, jello salad, cake, coffee and tea.

At each place setting were homemade mints and nuts in cups and a miniature hydrangea flower in a pot made from sugar. These were all hand-made by Erma Darkes and were in a white pot with pink, yellow and lilac blooms. The cakes were also made by Mrs. Darkes with each individual piece centered with the same flowers.

Before the guests were seated they sang "Hello Mothers" and then "Hello Daughters," led by Dorothy Cook and accompanied by Richard Cook as pianist.

Goldie Hopper gave the invocation, followed by a Toast to the Daughters by Connie Edgington and a Toast to the Mothers by Carla and Colleen Edgington.

Following the dinner Dorothy Cook, President of the Christian

Women's Circle, welcomed all present and read the poem entitled "A Mother's Love" by Helen Steiner Rice. The playlet, "There Is Beauty All Around", written by Virgie Wean, was presented by the girls of the Junior Choir under the direction of Carol Higgins and accompanied by Linda Leatherwood.

In the playlet you visited a modest little cottage, a modern home and a palatial estate. The following songs were sung by the choir: "There Is Beauty All Around," "Beautiful Hands," "I Heard God Today" and "Child of the King."

Door prizes were then awarded to seventeen of the mothers and daughters present with Kelly Welsh drawing the numbers.

A potted plant was presented to Erma Darkes on behalf of the Christian Women's Circle for all the time she had given to the making of the table favors, mints and cakes.

The closing prayer was by Mae Alexander. There were one hundred and thirty mothers and daughters present and fifteen men who helped serve the banquet.

A very enjoyable evening was had by all who were in attendance.

The next meeting of the Christian Women's Circle will be held on June 8 that the church.

The Ashville Pythian Sisters held their annual inspection in the K.P. Hall on Tuesday, May 16. Inspecting Officer for the evening was District Deputy Mary Bigerton of Canal Winchester. Other distinguished guests introduced were Grand Senior Garnet Reichelderfer, Grand Trustee Leola Storts and Past Grand Chief Clara Cochran.

Initiated in the organization was Joseph C. Peters, Chancellor of Ashville Palmetto Lodge. Officers presiding during the evening were Most Excellent Chief Judy Campbell; Excellent Senior Ginny Rainey; Excellent Junior Janet Cline; Manager Pat Fortner; Treasurer Jean Schiff; Protector Janet McNeal; Guard Caroline Pritchard; Past Chief Shirley Little and pianist Gladys Rush.

Those in the Degree Staff were Madge Baum, Marilyn Sabine, Dorothy Cook, Shirley Rathburn, Pearl Fortner, Arlene Fortner, Sonia Seymour, Beverly Hoover, Becky Tosca, Betty Smith, Fern Lutz and Mary Helen Miller. All participating wore floor length formals.

The silver offering of the evening was given toward the Grand Chief's project at the Medina Home which is the refurbishing of the kitchen in the home.

Guests for the affair were from Circleville, Harrisburg, Canal Winchester and Newark. At the close of the evening refreshments of cookies, punch and coffee were served.

This Sunday, May 21, the First English Lutheran Church during their worship service will honor all couples who are celebrating their 25th Wedding Anniversaries this year and all couples who are celebrating 50 years and longer of marriage.

Nine couples will be honored — two couples celebrating 25 years, one couple 50 years and six couples celebrating over 50 years.

Mr. Marion Glick entered Grant Hospital on Sunday, May 14th, for observation and treatment.

The South Bloomfield Booster Club now has a permanent meeting date which is the second Tuesday of each month with the meeting to be held in the Municipal Building at 7:30 p.m.

The Club recently sent flowers to a member, Francis Carpenter, who is hospitalized at Riverside Methodist Hospital, Room 7024. They also gave a fifteen-dollar donation to the Teays Valley Youth Baseball League.

The Bingo game originally scheduled for May 20th has to be cancelled and will be held on June 10th.

A carry-in dinner for all members will be held in the Municipal Building on May 23 at 7:30 p.m. Each family attending is asked to furnish their table service and to bring canned goods that may be used for bingo prizes.

Farmer Gets Continuance

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A continuance was granted Thursday to Wayne G. Farmer, who allegedly impersonated a physician to get a job as administrator of Molly Stark Hospital in Canton, Ohio.

Magistrate Harry S. Davis continued the case to July 13. Farmer was charged April 21 with being a fugitive from Ohio where he was charged with larceny by trick.

Ohio officials have started extradition proceedings. Farmer's attorney said Thursday they would fight extradition "for a while" because bond under an 11-count indictment in Ohio would be very high.

Farmer is free under $1,500 bond here.

In Canton, Stark County Prosecutor David Dowd said Thursday he had been told by authorities in Missouri that the extradition of Farmer could be delayed by an informal hearing by the Missouri governor to confirm Farmer's identity and by a Circuit Court hearing if

Pleasant Weather Again On Tap

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Pleasant weather prevailed over most of the nation today, with clear skies and warm temperatures widespread.

Only the Northeast and the Northwest remained comparatively cool, with early morning temperatures in the 50s. Readings in the 60s and 70s were common elsewhere.

A few heavy showers and thunderstorms were scattered across the map. One storm pelted Beulah, N.D., with hailstones the size of marbles and about an inch of rain. Hail also hit Athens, Ga.

Contract Awarded

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — W. B. Gibson Co. of Warren, Ohio, has been awarded a $2.99 million general construction contract to build two women's dormitories at Edinboro State College. The General State Authority announced Thursday.

Farmer requested a writ of habeas corpus.

HIS FEET ARE ON THE GROUND!

This man can see for many, many miles, but he's not up in the clouds; his feet are on the ground!

The Church gives man stability too—a broader vision. It lifts up his eyes to see God and the eternal values of love, truth, justice and service which God inspires. It gives him a divine perspective from which to view his job, his family, his country—his life!

But the Church always keeps that man's feet on the ground! It accepts him for what he is—regardless of the clothes he wears or the job he holds. It looks evil in the face and sees it for what it is—a devilish cancer which only God can cure. It keeps a man's feet on the ground while it lifts up his eyes to see beyond the horizon.

And this is what the Church can do for you! It can give you greater vision. But it's not up in the clouds. It keeps your feet on the ground!

Farmer Gets Continuance

KANSAS CITY (AP) — A continuance was granted Thursday to Wayne G. Farmer, who allegedly impersonated a physician to get a job as administrator of Molly Stark Hospital in Canton, Ohio.

Magistrate Harry S. Davis continued the case to July 13. Farmer was charged April 21 with being a fugitive from Ohio where he was charged with larceny by trick.

Ohio officials have started extradition proceedings. Farmer's attorney said Thursday they would fight extradition "for a while" because bond under an 11-count indictment in Ohio would be very high.

Farmer is free under $1,500 bond here.

In Canton, Stark County Prosecutor David Dowd said Thursday he had been told by authorities in Missouri that the extradition of Farmer could be delayed by an informal hearing by the Missouri governor to confirm Farmer's identity and by a Circuit Court hearing if

Pleasant Weather Again On Tap

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS
Pleasant weather prevailed over most of the nation today, with clear skies and warm temperatures widespread.

Only the Northeast and the Northwest remained comparatively cool, with early morning temperatures in the 50s. Readings in the 60s and 70s were common elsewhere.

A few heavy showers and thunderstorms were scattered across the map. One storm pelted Beulah, N.D., with hailstones the size of marbles and about an inch of rain. Hail also hit Athens, Ga.

Contract Awarded

HARRISBURG, Pa. (AP) — W. B. Gibson Co. of Warren, Ohio, has been awarded a $2.99 million general construction contract to build two women's dormitories at Edinboro State College, the General State Authority announced Thursday.

Farmer requested a writ of habeas corpus.

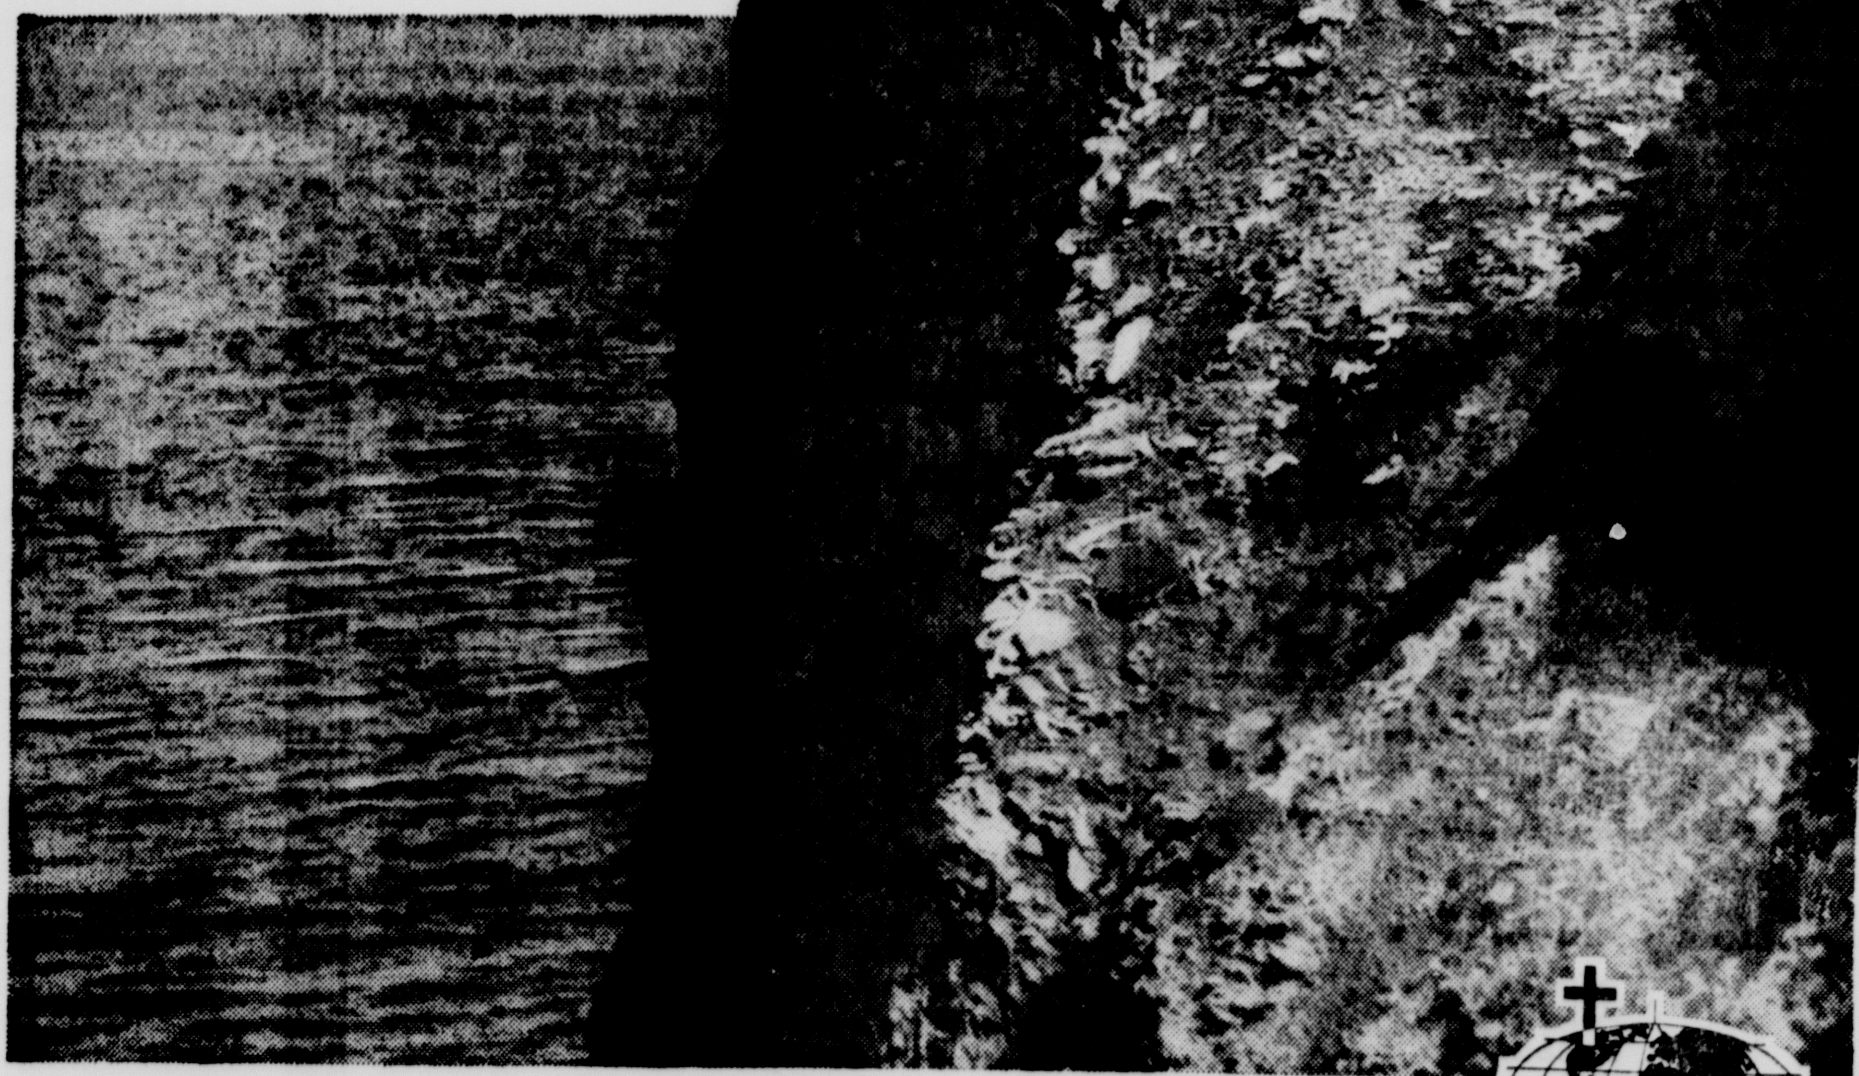

HIS FEET ARE ON THE GROUND!

This man can see for many, many miles, but he's not up in the clouds; his feet are on the ground!

The Church gives man stability too—a broader vision. It lifts up his eyes to see God and the eternal values of love, truth, justice and service which God inspires. It gives him a divine perspective from which to view his job, his family, his country—his life!

But the Church always keeps that man's feet on the ground! It accepts him for what he is—regardless of the clothes he wears or the job he holds. It looks evil in the face and sees it for what it is—a devilish cancer which only God can cure. It keeps a man's feet on the ground while it lifts up his eyes to see beyond the horizon.

And this is what the Church can do for you! It can give you greater vision. But it's not up in the clouds. It keeps your feet on the ground!

Former Alcoholic Now Lutheran Minister

By JOHN LUNDQUIST
Associated Press Writer
ST. PAUL, Minn. (AP) — O. Bruce Miller, 39, onetime failure who as an alcoholic was fired from a managerial job, will be ordained a minister of the American Lutheran Church this month.

Miller is an American Indian, native of the Stockbridge-Munsee band of Mohicans and grew up on a reservation near Shawano, Wis.

He'll take full-time church work as minister to his own people in South Minneapolis, a job he has worked at part time while going through Luther Theological Seminary in St. Paul and providing for his family of six.

Miller is the kind of minister in demand as a bridge to the minorities. But he exemplifies another type of pastor that is increasingly in demand—the pragmatic man who has wrestled with life, not merely studied books.

Asked about his early life, Miller replied, "You might say

I came from royalty. My dad was chief of the tribe. And my oldest brother was chief after him."

He was one of a family of eight boys and two girls. He quit high school and began working for a brother-in-law in land surveying and civil engineering at the age of 15. He married when 20 and worked several years in the Chicago area with a floor-finishing firm.

After three years in the military he returned to the flooring business in Chicago in 1954, and was made city sales manager, first with one firm and then another.

He says he had started drinking at the age of 15 and had become an alcoholic by the time he held responsible jobs.

"I was really at the bottom of the barrel," he recalls. "But I gave my heart to God. I didn't go through any man-made program to break the jinx."

Miller says it happened when a minister from Hauge Lutheran Church, Chicago, visited him at a hospital while he had an ulcer problem.

"He got us interested in sending our children to Sunday school," Miller recalls. "I was quite hostile toward the church, but after a while my wife and I went to church, too."

Miller worked briefly at driving a truck. Then he and his wife went to Arizona. "I decided I had to preach the Gospel to Indians," he said.

By 1970, he decided he needed seminary training. Lutheran Seminary admitted him in the 1969-70 school year.

"I think in most cases those of us who go to the seminary later in life have an advantage over those who come fresh from college," says Miller, "especially if we've had experience in the Christian ministry. We know something about disappointments and victories and defeats, a little bit about what's going on out there."

Drinking Water Can't Be Certified

ATLANTA, Ga. (AP)—The regional office of the Environmental Protection Agency said Tuesday that drinking water of the city of Brunswick has been banned from interstate transportation carriers because the agency is unable to determine the water's quality and safety.

The prohibition against use of Brunswick water applies to interstate trains, buses, ships and airplanes.

Jack Ravan, regional EPA administrator, said the water samples the city submits to the state are "insufficient to determine properly the quality and

Man Is Sentenced On Escape Charges

CINCINNATI (AP) — Arthur Tarpley has been sentenced on five charges stemming from the escape of 24 prisoners from the Hamilton County Jail March 20.

Tarpley, 23, of Cincinnati was accused of initiating the escape by smuggling a gun into the jail on the top floor of the six-story county courthouse building.

In making the announcement Wednesday, Eichholz noted that state law requires fluoridation of water by January 1, 1973.

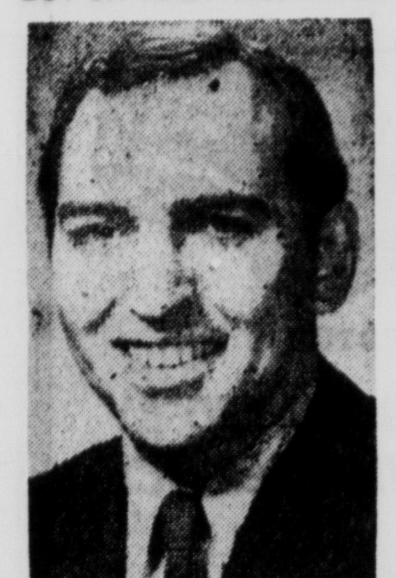

Middletown Worker Hearings Delayed

MIDDLETOWN, Ohio (AP) — Hearings for 64 municipal workers charged with violating the Ferguson Act are being delayed because of a court challenge over who should conduct the sessions.

In a motion filed in Butler County Common Pleas Court in nearby Hamilton Wednesday, an attorney for Local 865 of the American Federation of State, County and Municipal Employees said Middletown City Manager Dale Helsel is not eligible to hold the hearings.

Notable Athletes Produced In '72

By JEFF HARR

The class of 1972 provided CHS with some outstanding athletes in fact with more than their share.

The seniors, who have just completed their last day of school life a few hours ago, have broken and set many school records and gained a feared name for some Circleville athletic teams.

Over the past school year the Circleville cross country team finished sixth in state meet (highest ever for CHS), the wrestling team finished sixth at the state meet which was also the highest for CHS, the baseball team is still in tournament play, the track team has come out as sectional champions, and are putting everything on the line in the district meet tomorrow.

The basketball team posted a fine 14-6 record after running into some bad luck in the tournament. The football team began the season 3-0, were ranked top in the state, then were upset and never seemed to be able to put everything together after that, although they went on to post a 6-4 record.

This Senior Class provided CHS with its first two state champions, also. Steve Richards led his cross country team in the state meet by capturing the whole thing himself last fall. Mark Davey became a state champion wrestler after winning sectional and district championships this past winter.

Some outstanding athletes of the class of '72 are listed below with their achievements:

MARK DAVEY — All league wrestler; selected honorary captain of the all-SCOL football team; first team all-district football; honorable mention all-state football; sectional, district, and state wrestling champion; most valuable player on the football and wrestling teams; voted outstanding wrestler at the SCOL wrestling meet; and set new school records for most wins and most pins in a wrestling season.

DON VALENTINE — Co-captain of the baseball and basketball teams; captain of the football team; all-league football; second team all-district football; and all-league baseball. Don is president of the Stogie Club and has also earned eight varsity letters.

TERRY MORRISON — Co-captain of the basketball team; honorary captain for the all-league basketball team; SCOL leading scorer in basketball; set seniors have also shown that they can combine their talents and come out successfully. Marc Warner, Rich Speakman, Ian Griffey, and Tom Shea combined their efforts and speed to come out on top as sectional champions in the 880 yard relay. They also set a new CHS relay record which has remained unbroken since 1961.

These four speedsters will also be making their bid in the district meet tomorrow and we wish these four, as well as anyone else participating in the meet, the best of luck.

Company Boycott Urged By Gregory

OXFORD, Ohio (AP) — Co-median — author Dick Gregory has urged youths involved in the antiwar movement to join forces and stage an economic boycott against large companies in the nation.

"Don't buy chickens and turkeys, don't buy from Standard Oil, don't buy General Motors products and don't have a Christmas next year if the war isn't over by July 4," Gregory said, referring to the conflict in Southeast Asia.

We seniors now leave the sheltered halls of CHS and travel on to an experience which is even a greater part of our education — life itself. Yes, we may pretend sometimes that we are something we actually aren't, but time will tell of what we are made and where we are going.

Some senior may be a doctor, another a ditch digger, but whatever the profession, that particular person ventures on and remembers those "good ol' days" at CHS.

Remember this? Remember that? Remember the time we...? Remember that kid with the...? Go ahead, chuckle, but it will happen or has happened to you.

As each and every one of us march down the football field May 28, we will have a goal in mind. Then we will work and strive for that goal to show the people of Roundtown we are willing to work for what we believe.

Dear Abby: By Abigail Van Buren

Mate's Habit Harmless

DEAR ABBY: My husband has a fascination for mud! I think it's because when he was a little boy his mother never let him get dirty. He said she used to run after him with a damp cloth about 20 times a day to be sure his hands were clean.

Anyway, I didn't know anything about the way he liked to play in mud until after I married him. He sometimes goes in the back yard and turns on the garden hose to make a lot of mud, and then he gets right down in it and rolls around in it until he's covered with mud from head to toe. He gets a real satisfaction out of it Abby. He yells for me to come and look, and he always leaves his muddy clothes in the yard for me to pick up and cart to the washer.

How can I break him of this weird habit? Otherwise, he is perfectly normal.

BEWILDERED

DEAR BEWILDERED: Why should you? It's harmless. Your mudder is finally getting back at mother.

DEAR ABBY: I am 22, and old enough to know my own mind, but my mother is driving me crazy. I went with a guy named Allen for two years, but it just didn't work out between us. He was a nice kid, but he just wasn't for me.

My mother always liked Allen, and she compares every boy I've gone with since him.

Right now I am practically engaged to Gerry, and my mother still asks me why I stopped going with a nice boy like Allen. She keeps saying things like, "Why don't you ask Allen over sometime, maybe you two can pick up where you left off."

Abby, I don't feel anything for Allen, and I'm sure he doesn't feel anything for me, but I can't seem to get that through my mother's head! To make matters worse, my mother calls Gerry, "Allen."

Oh, brother!

UP A WALL

DEAR UP: Your mother still obviously has a soft spot in her heart for Allen. In time she will get over him, just as you have. Be patient.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old male, and I am going bald fast. There is hair on my pillow, hair all over the floor, and every time I wash my hair or comb or brush it, it comes out in gobs.

My father went bald at a very early age so I am not surprised.

My problem is my parents. They say I am losing my hair because I wear it too long. They insist that it's falling out because it is heavy and it's being pulled down by its own weight, and if I cut it short (crew cut) it wouldn't fall out. This sounds idiotic to me. I figure it's just heredity. My parents won't believe me, but they'll believe you. What's the answer, Abby?

GOING BALD IN LAKEWOOD

DEAR GOING: You're right. It is hereditary. You won't have it long, if you wear it shorter.

DEAR ABBY: I'm another man who reads your column faithfully, but never thought I'd be writing to you.

I am a dairy farmer and noticed that you said when a heifer and a bull were born twins, in slightly less than 15 per cent of the cases, the heifer was a freemartin and therefore cannot reproduce.

Your definition of a freemartin was correct, but your percentage was wrong. Approximately 93 per cent of heifers born twins to a bull are fre Martins.

J.S.H. TURBERIDGE VT.

DEAR J.A.H.: Thanks to you and the many other sharp-eyed readers who caught the error and pointed it out to me. My farm animals expert reversed the percentages on me.

Majorettes Picked For Coming Year

"Left face — march! About face! To the rear! Now march!" These are a few of the remarks heard at the majorette tryouts.

For tryouts all the girls had to do a dance routine and march routine and respond to the marching calls. For drum majorette tryouts they had to give the calls.

Two girls were chosen to lead the band for next year and they just happen to be the same as last year. Kathy Penn and Jill Hoffman will be called the twin drum majorettes. They will dress alike and do the same precision drills.

Kathy is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard Penn of 503 Springhill Road. Kathy will be a senior next year.

The other Twin Drum Majorette is Jill Hoffman. She resides at Route 2 with her parents Mr. and Mrs. William R. Hoffman. She is also a senior next year.

This year's squad was enlarged quite a bit. There will be seven other majorettes performing with the twin drum majorettes.

Acting as head majorette will be Elizabeth Schumm. Elizabeth is a returning majorette and will be a junior next year.

Making up the rest of the group will be senior, Michele Schob; junior, Terry Edwards; and sophomores, Ann Frericks, Kathy Bowers, Linda Carter, and Debbie Woodward.

Oh, brother!

UP A WALL

DEAR UP: Your mother still obviously has a soft spot in her heart for Allen. In time she will get over him, just as you have. Be patient.

DEAR ABBY: I am a 19-year-old male, and I am going bald fast. There is hair on my pillow, hair all over the floor, and every time I wash my hair or comb or brush it, it comes out in gobs.

My father went bald at a very early age so I am not surprised.

My problem is my parents. They say I am losing my hair because I wear it too long. They insist that it's falling out because it is heavy and it's being pulled down by its own weight, and if I cut it short (crew cut) it wouldn't fall out. This sounds idiotic to me. I figure it's just heredity. My parents won't believe me, but they'll believe you. What's the answer, Abby?

GOING BALD IN LAKEWOOD

DEAR GOING: You're right. It is hereditary. You won't have it long, if you wear it shorter.

DEAR ABBY: I'm another man who reads your column faithfully, but never thought I'd be writing to you.

I am a dairy farmer and noticed that you said when a heifer and a bull were born twins, in slightly less than 15 per cent of the cases, the heifer was a freemartin and therefore cannot reproduce.

Your definition of a freemartin was correct, but your percentage was wrong. Approximately 93 per cent of heifers born twins to a bull are fre Martins.

J.S.H. TURBEBRIDGE VT.

DEAR J.A.H: Thanks to you and the many other sharp-eyed readers who caught the error and pointed it out to me. My farm animals expert reversed the percentages on me.

At the closing of another season, for the Girl Scout Troop 1084, we are sorry to have it so. We have had a wonderful year despite our hard work to make the year a success. Here are some of the things we did in 1971 and 72 — Oct. we took a bicycle ride to Greens Pond. In Dec. went to Jewish Temple in Columbus, also went shopping in German Village. In Jan. Camp-in at C.O.S.I. Feb. dinner for our parents, cooking the meal by ourselves.

March and April we enjoyed 12 Saturdays skating. May 11 we gave a party for several mothers of our community. The tables were decorated with pink crepe paper, and a beautiful vase of lilies, furnished by Mr. Beckman. We served a lovely cake (baked and decorated) by Norma Goehner, also mints, nuts and fruit punch.

May 30, 31st and June 1st we are going to Camp Ken-Jockey for 3 days. This is paid for by the sale of cookies. In June we are planning a bicycle ride and picnic at the Stanton home.

We are going to fill the flower boxes, on the street corners, in our town. We will have a booth at the homecoming, the 4th and 5th of August, serving pie and ice cream. This concludes our project for the summer, hope to see you in September.

Thanks to our leaders, Mrs. Beckett and Mrs. Sheekherd.

A miscellaneous bridal shower, was given last Sunday, for Miss Beth Browning, by Rosemary Conrad, Connie Carothers and Peggy Kovacic, at Hamilton private dining room, at Miami University. Beth received many lovely gifts. Those attending from here was her mother Mrs. Charlotte Browning, and the two grandmothers, Mrs. Robert Holshoe and Mrs. Helen Browning.

Mrs. Wilma Yeager, was bitten on the arm, one day this week, by a dog and was treated at the doctor's office.

United Airlines Bid Rejected By Board

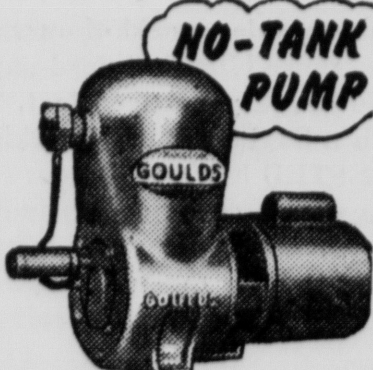

WASHINGTON (AP) — An application by United Airlines for temporary authority to operate shuttle service between Chicago and Dayton, Ohio, was rejected Thursday by the Civil Aeronautics Board.

The airline had asked for immediate authority to operate without a restriction that flights between those cities also must serve Washington, D.C., pending a ruling on its request for an amended certificate.

But the CAB said the service should be authorized only after a formal proceeding.

Even Toilet Seats Prove Problem For Lucasville

By KENNETH L. DAVIS
Associated Press Writer

LUCASVILLE, Ohio (AP) — One of the nagging little problems Bill Whealon worries about are toilet lids. He need 1,520 of them.

What worries him is that he can't have them.

Bill Whealon is 43-year-old Wilfred J. Whealon, superintendent of the giant Southern Ohio Correctional Facility outside Lucasville in Scioto County, the nation's newest maximum security prison.

The Lucasville complex, although it looks like a Holiday Inn gone mad, will house violent convicts subject to the most dangerous dangers. With them, a prison can't have things around that make ready weapons.

Among those items are toilet lids. Made of wood they can be a shillelagh, fit to brain a prison officer. Made of plastic they can be turned into lethal stabbers.

But, porcelain gets chilly in Scioto County winters and Bill Whealon, for all that he's running the state's toughest prison, is a humane man.

"We're negotiating with a plastics firm in Ohio," said

Whealon. "It makes those plastic training kits for kids and we want one like it to cover the porcelain."

Whealon sounded almost defensive about his concern. "They shouldn't cost too much," he said.

As the man who runs a $32 million prison that will house nearly 1,600 convicts, Whealon has several worries ranking higher than toilet lids. For starters he has 22 acres of buildings, 68 acres inside the 15-foot wire walls and, eventually, a staff of 550.

He's already gotten static about the recruitment of blacks for the prison staff. Of a population of 80,000 in Scioto County only 1,800 are blacks.

But, worrying about human beings comes naturally to Bill Whealon, a bachelor who puts in seven days a week getting the Lucasville prison ready for mid-summer occupancy.

His brother, Archbishop John F. Whealon of Hartford, Conn., also worries about people. They got that trait from their Barberton, Ohio, parents, Dr. and Mrs. John Whealon. It was a question which direction Bill Whealon's concern would take.

After high school, Whealon spent four years in the U.S. Air Force, then earned his bachelor's degree in social science at John Carroll University in Cleveland. That was 1956. Four years with Seiberling Rubber Co. followed before Whealon decided business wasn't for him.

So, back to Kent State University for graduate work in sociology and the beginning of his career in penology with the Bureau of Probation in Summit and Portage counties and Dayton and Springfield.

End-The-War Amendment Hits Slow Time In Senate

WASHINGTON (AP) — With Republicans saying even to discuss such an issue now would hamper President Nixon's upcoming Moscow summit and encourage the North Vietnamese, the Senate has lapsed into a slowdown on an end-the-war amendment.

Senate doves, convinced their amendment to cut off appropriations for U.S. combat involvement in Indochina has been diluted beyond hope, would like to try something else.

They are eying a new amendment of Sen. Mike Mansfield calling for withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam by Aug. 31 and a cut off of funds at that time. All U.S. combat involvement in Indochina would end with return of POWs and the calling of a cease-fire.

Meanwhile, the original amendment of Sens. Clifford Case, R-N.J., and Frank Church, D-Idaho, still sits before the Senate. Not a word has been said about it in two days.

At one point, assistant Democratic leader Robert Byrd of West Virginia said: "There has not been one paragraph, one sentence, one word, one consonant, one vowel, spoken on either side of the aisle."

Sen. Hugh Scott of Pennsylvania, GOP leader, predicts no more votes on Case-Church until next week.

In order to get to the Mansfield amendment, there would have to be several votes on amendments to it, including one to kill it. A move also could be made to table it.

Sen. Robert Griffin of Michigan, assistant Republican leader, has a modification pending to insert the President's provision calling for return of POWs into Case-Church.

A vote of 47 to 43 Tuesday put the President's wording on a cease-fire into the amendment, so weakening it, Church said, that he would vote against it.

Senate doves, convinced their amendment to cut off appropriations for U.S. combat involvement in Indochina has been diluted beyond hope, would like to try something else.

Income Tax Foes See Wide Appeal

COLUMBUS, Ohio (AP) — Leaders of a campaign to repeal Ohio's income tax say there now are organizations in 50 counties circulating petitions to get the nearly 320,000 signatures needed to put the issue on the November ballot.

More than 8,000 petitions are being circulated across the state, according to Rep. Robert Netzeley, R-7 Laura, who heads the Citizens for Repeal of the Income Tax, Inc.

Netzeley, meeting with news media representatives Thursday as the group opened an office in downtown Columbus, said the organization is trying to recruit another 10,000 to 15,000 persons to circulate the petitions.

Deadline for filing the signatures is Aug. 7. But the committee is shooting for a deadline of July 1, he added.

The repeal movement, started by a group of Republican legislators including Netzeley, has created divisions within GOP ranks.

House Speaker Charles Kurfess and 12 other Republicans voted for the income tax when it was passed last December.

The repeal proposal, in the form of a constitutional amendment, would cancel the .52 to 3.5 per cent personal income tax as of Jan. 1, 1973, if approved by voters.

It would not affect taxes collected during 1972.

They are eying a new amendment of Sen. Mike Mansfield calling for withdrawal of U.S. troops from Vietnam by Aug. 31 and a cut off of funds at that time. All U.S. combat involvement in Indochina would end with return of POWs and the calling of a cease-fire.

How do you keep the leading hitter in the league from gaining a berth on the All-League team? The answer is really quite simple — Let him play in the South Central Ohio League.

In case anyone doesn't know by this time, we are referring to the unbelievable omission of Circleville's Tom Taylor from the All-League team.

We first heard the news we were amazed, then dismayed, disgusted and now angry.

This young athlete played every game at second base for the Tigers and was a defensive standout.

But what he did with the bat is a matter of record and the league coaches, who make the selections, must have been asleep when the statistics were read.

Taylor led the league with a torrid average of .621, at least a hundred points better than his closest competitor. He scored 16 runs and had nine runs batted in while hitting in the second spot in the lineup. He was also the leading base stealer for Circleville.

The young man who was named to the position played a good deal of the season at third base and we can't understand how this qualifies him for the second base post — A utility spot perhaps — But not second base definitely. Both boys are juniors so this could not have any bearing on the case.

We also, can't figure out how Circleville's senior first baseman, Randy Sprout, was overlooked in the balloting. Sprout ripped the ball at a .500 clip and had to be considered one of the top defensive players in the league. He was guilty of two miscues in 74 chances which isn't bad in anybody's league.

We certainly can't understand what happened and would appreciate hearing from any coach or SCOL member who can enlighten us on the situation.

We would like to inform the league coaches who failed to recognize Taylor that he is the fiery redhead who beat them with his bat, stunned them with his glove and tore them up on the basepaths. He will be back next year so that should give them something to think about.

Tiger coach Dannie Fouts knows he should have been selected, the Tiger players know it, the fans know it and last but by no means least — Tom Taylor knows it.

We have never heard of leaving the top hitter in any league off the All-Star team.

Things like this hurt the players and the league. A few more cases like this and SCO could become Some Crummy Operation — We'd sure hate to see it happen.

Our "fearless" forecast — Arnold Palmer is our man in the Memphis Open . . . Riva Ridge will race to the wire in the Preakness.

Until next time, have a nice day — be a good sport.

Logan Elm Ends Season With 5-1 Win Over CW

IV Vikings Down Hamilton In Metro, 7-1

Teays Valley kept their Metro League hopes alive with a 7-1 thumping of Hamilton Twp., but now must repeat their performance in a crucial game with Franklin Heights tonight.

The Vikings are 8-13 overall, but 5-3 in league play as they struggle with front-running Franklin Heights.

Sam Wilson, who gained the win, was two outs away from a complete game Thursday, but was pulled in favor of Jerry Sabine, who earned a save for 23 hitless innings.

Wilson allowed one run on four hits in 6 1-3 innings. He walked four and fanned five.

Teays Valley jumped on Hamilton starter Johnson for a single run in the first inning, scored twice in the fourth and knocked him from the game with four runs in the fifth inning.

The big blow was a three-run homerun by Jeff Beatty. Hamilton Twp. scored their single marker in the sixth inning.

The Vikings, who erupted for 10 hits, were paced by Dave Chaffin's three singles. Phil Salyers got a triple and a single, Jim Pabst stroked two singles, and Terry Lambert and Joe Merritt collected singles.

McRae Gives Cincinnati Reds 8-5 Win Over Giants

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — Hal McRae, who had not had a hit in eight times at bat, drove in four runs Thursday to give the Cincinnati Reds their eighth win in a row by downing San Francisco 8-5.

"I'm the greatest fan the Cincinnati Reds have," grinned the centerfielder who had been riding the bench all season long. Red manager Sparky Anderson inserted McRae in the lineup to bat fourth and gave centerfielder Bobby Tolan the day off.

McRae blasted two runs home in the first inning off Sam McDowell with a bases loaded single and a sacrifice fly by Julina Javier added a third run.

In the sixth inning, Bobby Bond hit a three-run homer off Wayne Simpson tying the score 3-3, and the Giants went ahead 4-3 when Dave Kingman came

Rites Set For Jim Malloy, Race Driver And Gentleman

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — Less than a week ago, race driver Jim Malloy said, "It doesn't take guts to drive a race car at 190-plus miles per hour. It (the car) feels absolutely stable at that speed, more so than the car I had last year which I had to push to its limits just to get in the lineup."

Now, the 36-year-old veteran is dead. He died in Methodist Hospital here Thursday, five days after suffering massive injuries in a crash at the Indianapolis Motor Speedway during practice for last Sunday's qualifying session.

Malloy, the father of three, never regained consciousness.

Work for the May 27 Indianapolis 500-mile race continued unabated Thursday despite the sadness over the tragic death, the first at the Speedway since Mike Spence of the British Lotus Team died in a practice crash in 1968.

But there were reactions from the men Malloy worked with and against. All felt the racing world has lost a tremendous driving talent and a gentleman.

Dan Gurney, who was the owner of the car that Malloy drove to fourth place here last May, said, "Jim was one of the sweetest guys I've ever known. He was personable, easy going, and a joy to work with in a business where minds and opinions clash frequently."

Grant King, Indianapolis car builder and owner, was the man who brought Malloy to the Speedway in his rookie year, 1967. King said, "I gave him a job so he could eat, and I gave him a ride so he could get his career going.

"He was as nice a guy as I ever worked with," King added, "and I knew he had the potential to become a great driver."

Memorial services for Malloy will be held today at 8 p.m. at Conkle Funeral Home in Indianapolis. Speedway officials said the body would be flown to Malloy's hometown of Denver, Colo., Saturday morning, with funeral arrangements there incomplete.

Malloy, who would have been 37 Tuesday, leaves behind a son, Jim, 14, and two daughters, Cheryl, 11, and Pat, 8.

How do you keep the leading hitter in the league from gaining a berth on the All-League team? The answer is really quite simple — Let him play in the South Central Ohio League.

In case anyone doesn't know by this time, we are referring to the unbelievable omission of Circleville's Tom Taylor from the All-League team.

We first heard the news we were amazed, then dismayed, disgusted and now angry.

This young athlete played every game at second base for the Tigers and was a defensive standout.

But what he did with the bat is a matter of record and the league coaches, who make the selections, must have been asleep when the statistics were read.

Taylor led the league with a torrid average of .621, at least a hundred points better than his closest competitor. He scored 16 runs and had nine runs batted in while hitting in the second spot in the lineup. He was also the leading base stealer for Circleville.

The young man who was named to the position played a good deal of the season at third base and we can't understand how this qualifies him for the second base post — A utility spot perhaps — But not second base definitely. Both boys are juniors so this could not have any bearing on the case.

We also can't figure out how Circleville's senior first baseman, Randy Sprout, was overlooked in the balloting. Sprout ripped the ball at a .500 clip and had to be considered one of the top defensive players in the league. He was guilty of two miscues in 74 chances which isn't bad in anybody's league.

We certainly can't understand what happened and would appreciate hearing from any coach or SCOL member who can enlighten us on the situation.

We would like to inform the league coaches who failed to recognize Taylor that he is the fiery redhead who beat them with his bat, stunned them with his glove and tore them up on the basepaths. He will be back next year so that should give them something to think about.

Tiger coach Dannie Fouts knows he should have been selected, the Tiger players know it, the fans know it and last but by no means least — Tom Taylor knows it.

We have never heard of leaving the top hitter in any league off the All-Star team.

Things like this hurt the players and the league. A few more cases like this and SCO could become some Crummy Operation — We'd sure hate to see it happen.

Our "fearless" forecast — Arnold Palmer is our man in the Memphis Open . . . Riva Ridge will race to the wire in the Preakness.

Until next time, have a nice day — be a good sport.

LEHS Golfers Drop 2 Matches

Logan Elm dropped two golf matches by close scores this week and tonight finishes out the initial season for the sport at LEHS with a triangular event at Upper Lansdowne.

Tuesday the Braves were on the short end of a 179-177 match in which the winner was determined by medal play with the best four of five scores being counted.

Rick Howard's 39 was low for both teams. Other LE scores were Marty Fullen, 41; Bob Helwagen, 51; Scott Marshall, 52; Rod Howard, 48.

Thursday the Braves lost to Circleville, 185-181. Rick Howard and Circleville's Dave Grigg shared medalist honors with 42s.

For LEHS Marty Fullen carded a 46, Rod Howard a 47, Alex Jones a 54 and Bob Helwagen 50. For Circleville: J. C. Timberlake shot 46, Mark Davey 48, Mike Hamrick 47 and Tom Hamilton 46.

Tonight Logan Elm's opponents will be Berne Union and Fairfield Union. The Braves have a 1-3 dual meet record. Nelsonville-York has a 13-6 record.

Harry Hoffer is the Logan Elm golf coach.

Eight quarterbacks turned out for spring football practice at Notre Dame.

In the sixth inning, Bobby Bond hit a three-run homer off Wayne Simpson tying the score 3-3, and the Giants went ahead 4-3 when Dave Kingman came home on a McRae error.

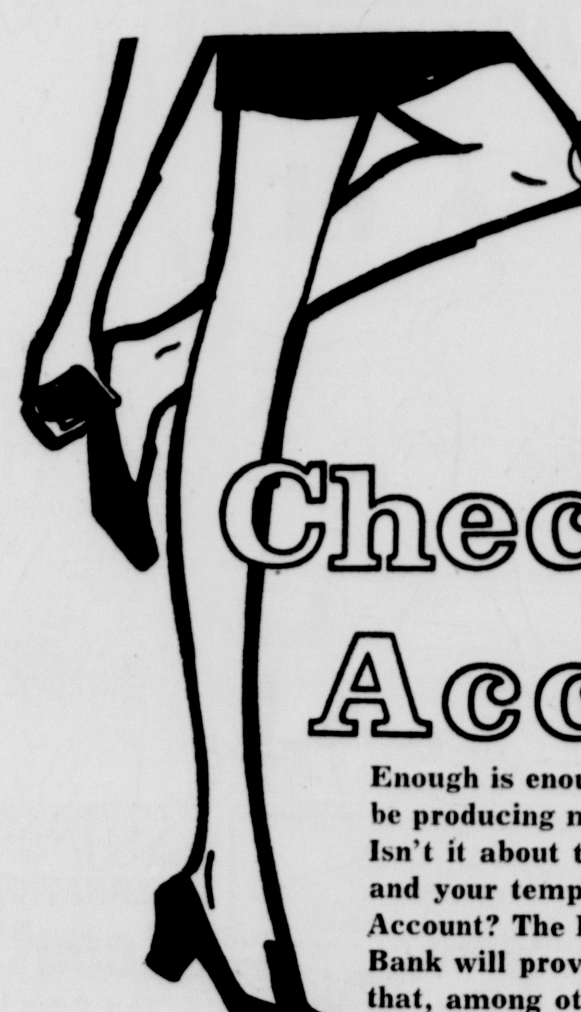

McRae then hit a two-run double in the seventh and a triple by Dave Concepcion made it 6-4. The Giants scored another in the eighth but the Reds came back with two more in the ninth on a triple by Cesar Geronimo and Bill Plummer's sacrifice fly.

Cincinnati moved to San Diego today for three games with the Padres.

Blefary Demands Increase In Pay

SAN DIEGO (AP) — Utility player Curt Blefary, traded from the Oakland Athletics to the San Diego Padres, refused Thursday to report to the Padres unless they boost his salary.

But E. J. "Buzie" Bavasi, Padre president and one-third owner, said he had no intention of giving the eight-year veteran a raise.

All-SVC Ball Team Named; Francis Is Player Of Year

Gary Francis of Logan Elm was named Scioto Valley Conference "Player of the Year" Thursday when the league coaches met to select the All-Star baseball team.

Also singled out for special honors were Logan Elm's Vic Pontius and Westfall's Paul Hoskins, as "co-coaches of the year."

League leaders Logan Elm and Westfall landed two and three first team berths, respectively while East Clinton, deadlocked with Adena in a third place tie, had four players named to the squad.

The only other LE player besides Francis making the team was Rick Blankenship. Both players were given outfield positions on the team although they were only parttime players there.

MAKING the team from Westfall were Ted Musselman, a junior pitcher, Larry Harris at catcher and John Riddle at first base.

Francis had a season batting average of .443 for Logan Elm. In SVC action only he hit .533. He has scored 23 runs, has 21 hits, including five doubles and two home runs, and stole 14 bases during the season. As a pitcher, he had a 4-0 record, a 1.97 earned run average. It is the third consecutive year he has been picked on the all-star team.

Blankenship, a senior, batted .367 during the year. Westfall's Musselman posted a .52 record on the mound, set a Westfall strikeout record with 18 in one game, had 80 total strikeouts in 47 1-3 innings on the mound.

Harris, a repeat SVC All-League, hit .462 during the season and was the leading hitter on the Westfall squad. Riddle was named at first base. A senior, he is a .300 hitter for Westfall.

At second base, league coaches selected Skeeter Hamilton of East Clinton, a senior with a .520 season batting average.

The All-SVC third baseman is Brent Anderson, Paint Valley a senior who hit .400 during the season while Perry Whittington of East Clinton, a junior with a .445 average rounded out the infield.

IN addition to Francis and Blankenship, the third outfielder was Richie Beverly, Adena, a sophomore who hit .360 during the season.

Six utility players were picked. They were: Roger Ragland, Adena, catcher, .365; Steve Chester, Unioto, catcher, sophomore, .353; Kevin Shoemaker, Paint Valley, shortstop, senior, .275; Roger Crace, Piketon, shortstop, senior, .354; Doug Strawser, Zane Trace, junior; Bob Olds, East Clinton, outfield, junior, .498.

Touring Pros Weeded Out At Memphis

MEMPHIS, Tenn. (AP) — Arnold Palmer lost a wristwatch. Billy Maxwell found the fairways. And a flock of the touring pros were looking for the shortest way home.

That was the situation after one day's play in the $175,000 Danny Thomas-Memphis Open Golf Classic as more than a half dozen players pulled out of the first round and the diminutive Maxwell, a notoriously short—but accurate—hitter, moved into a share of the lead.

Palmer, meanwhile, became so flustered when he discovered he'd lost a $1,200 wristwatch somewhere on the course that he took a triple bogey seven and had to rally to salvage a 71 and remain in contention.

The 5-foot-6 Maxwell, who hasn't won in the last decade while courses got longer and his fellow pros stronger, missed only two fairways on the long, demanding Colonial Country Club course, and posted a three-under-par 69.

He was tied at that figure with Gibby Gilbert and Hubert Green going into Friday's second round in the chase for a $35,000 first prize—about three times the amount Maxwell won all season last year.

Lee Trevino, who used a victory in this tournament a year ago as a springboard to his designation as athlete of the year, rallied strongly on the tough back nine for a 70. He was tied at that figure with former Masters champion Charles Coody.

Palmer was one of 14 tied at 71. Some of others included Doug Sanders, Deane Beman, Dave Stockton, Don January and J.C. Snead.

Jack Nicklaus, ailing from the flu, withdrew before play started on the warm, sunny, breezy day. Another seven followed suit during the course of play on the 7,195 yard, par 72 layout that has water on nine holes and deep, deep trouble off the fairways.

LEBANON, Ohio (AP) — A $335.70 perfecta was returned in the ninth race at Lebanon Raceway Thursday night on the combination of David Blue and Pastime Bomb.

David Blue paid only $8.60 to win but Pastime Bomb placed for $33.

Chief Tom Tom, driven by Omar Hiteman, won the featured eighth race by two lengths and returned $7.40, $3.80 and $2.60. Lighting Purdue placed for $4.60 and $3.40 and showing was Success Angel for $460.

Meadow Ann and Bombs Boo hooked up for a $40 daily double.

Pacers Rally Stops Nets, 100 - 99

By STEVE HERMAN

Associated Press Sports Writer

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. (AP) — Lou Carnesecca was not surprised the Indiana Pacers were able to come from 20 points down to nip his New York Nets, 100-99—just disappointed.

Lucas Resigns Grid Post At Miami Trace

Roy Lucas, 30-year-old head football coach at Miami Trace High School, has resigned his post to accept a position as assistant football coach at Morehead State University, Ky.

He will return to his alma mater as an offensive line coach for the Eagles.

Lucas took over at Miami Trace in 1970 when he replaced John Bexley as head grid mentor. He compiled a 2-7 record with the Panthers in his first season but guided them to an undefeated South Central Ohio League championship in 1971.

A 1959 graduate of Midletown High School, he is the younger brother of Jerry Lucas, Ohio State University and National Basketball Association star.

Tomlinson Wins Slow Pitch Tilt

Tomlinson beat Lewis Cook, 13-2 in a Pickaway County Slow Pitch contest at Ted Lewis Park.

Bill Huffman had three hits, including a homerun, Ted Diemler rapped a four-bagger and double and Mike Brown tripled for the winners.

"If you've been coaching 20 years, you learn to expect anything," Carnesecca said quietly in the Nets' dressing room after the game Thursday night.

The victory gave Indiana a 3-2 lead in the best-of-seven American Basketball Association championship series. The sixth game will be nationally televised from New York Saturday.

The Nets coach said the only time he knows he's won a game is "when I walk in the dressing room after it's over. I've been there too many times."

Carnesecca had good reason to feel optimistic most of the evening. New York grabbed a 16-13 lead in the first quarter, then outscored the Pacers 17-2.

Indiana scored the first five points of the second quarter and seemed to pick up momentum. But the Nets' Rick Barry scored a basket and three free throws and center Billy Paultz added another basket to give New York its biggest lead—40-20 with 8:40 left in the first half.

"We lost our poise in the first half," Pacer coach Bob Leonard said. "We were playing like a group of kids."

The Pacer "kids" matured rapidly at the start of the third quarter, led by 5-foot-10 guard Billy Keller.

Keller hit three straight 3-point goals as Indiana outscored the Nets 17-4 in the first four minutes of the third quarter. And her basket by Keller and two by Roger Brown tied the game at 60-all for the first time since 2-2.

After that, it was nip-and-tuck the rest of the game, with the two teams trading leads down to the last minute.

Barry hit two free throws with 27 seconds left to give the Nets a four-point bulge, 99-95.

But Keller hit his fourth 3-point goal 10 seconds later and teammate Freddie Lewis stole the ball and drew a foul as he went for the basket.

Lewis missed the first foul shot, then sank the second and hit the bonus to put Indiana ahead.

The Nets had one last chance to score. After a timeout to set the play, Tom Washington fired a pass that slipped through Barry's fingers and went out of bounds. Indiana stalled the final five seconds for the victory.

Keller shared scoring honors with Lewis for the Pacers with 22 points.

Barry topped all scorers with 33 points.

All-SVC Ball Team Named; Francis Is Player Of Year

Gary Francis of Logan Elm was named Scioto Valley Conference "Player of the Year" Thursday when the league coaches met to select the All-Star baseball team.

Also singled out for special honors were Logan Elm's Vic Pontius and Westfall's Paul Hoskins, as "co-coaches of the year."

League leaders Logan Elm and Westfall landed two and three first team berths, respectively while East Clinton, deadlocked with Adena in a third place tie, had four players named to the squad.

The only other LE player besides Francis making the team was Rick Blankenship. Both players were given outfield positions on the team although they were only parttime players there.

MAKING the team from Westfall were Ted Musselman, a junior pitcher, Larry Harris at catcher and John Riddle at first base.

Francis had a season batting average of .443 for Logan Elm. In SVC action only he hit 533. He has scored 23 runs, has 21 hits, including five doubles and two home runs, and stole 14 bases during the season. As a pitcher, he had a 4-0 record, a 1.97 earned run average. It is the third consecutive year he has been picked on the all-star team.

Blankenship, a senior, batted .367 during the year. Westfall's Musselman posted a 5-2 record on the mound, set a Westfall strikeout record with 18 in one game, had 80 total strikeouts in 47 1-3 innings on the mound.

Harris, a repeat SVC All-Leaguer, hit .462 during the season and was the leading hitter on the Westfall squad. Riddle was named at first base. A senior, he is a .300 hitter for Westfall.

At second base, league coaches selected Skeeter Hamilton of East Clinton, a senior with a .520 season batting average.

The All-SVC third baseman is Brent Anderson, Paint Valley a senior who hit .400 during the season while Perry Whittington of East Clinton, a junior with a .445 average rounded out the infield.

IN addition to Francis and Blankenship, the third outfielder was Richie Beverly, Adena, a sophomore who hit .360 during the season.

Six utility players were picked. PARC Hears
Clark County
Officials

Dr. Fred Mueller and Mr. Wayne Lawhorn were the speakers at the Pickaway Assn. for Retarded Children meeting Tuesday Night.

They are the administrators of the Hope School and the Clark County Residential Center for the mentally retarded.

Dr. Mueller told the audience of 60 representatives of service clubs in the county and interested citizens how the school came about in 1952. Since then a workshop and residential center have been added as the need arose.

The workshop has been successful in not only training the students to do something with their time, but has placed 50 students in jobs in the community. This has been a very successful arrangement for all concerned.

Lawhorn showed many slides of the Residential Center residents and the employees. The homelike atmosphere is stressed complete with posters on the walls and a recreation center with a pool table and ping pong tables.

The entire group was impressed with the genuine concern these gentlemen had for the welfare of the children. Even the nurse is required to wear street clothes to detract from the institution-type home.

The school is open to all mentally retarded in Clark County and the Residential Center has facilities for 48 at this time. There is a plan for expansion in the future but the emphasis is placed on a home for those who have none and no one to provide one for them. This necessitates keeping the home small enough to give the individual attention the children need.

Savings, Loan
Group Elects
District Officers

Richard H. Wilson, president and managing officer of the First Federal Savings and Loan of Newark is the new president of the 12 county District No. 40 of the Ohio Savings and Loan League.

Wilson was elected May 17 at the annual spring conference held this year at the Ramada Inn North of Columbus. Savings and loan associations from the counties of Franklin, Delaware, Union, Knox, Cochocton, Muskingum, Perry, Licking, Fairfield, Pickaway, Fayette and Madison were represented at the meeting of over 200 savings associations' executives.

Wilson as president of the district succeeds John G. Lambert, chairman of the board and managing officer of State Saving of Columbus.

Also elected was Kenneth R. Elshoff, president and managing officer of Railroad Savings and Loan of Columbus, who was elected district vice president. E. D. Lorenz, president and managing officer of Citizens Federal Savings and Loan of Marysville was elected district secretary.

Speakers at the sessions were: David A. Vetter of Portsmouth, president of the Ohio Savings and Loan League, which represents the $15 1/2 billion Ohio industry; Joseph E. Linville of Columbus, executive vice president of the Ohio League; P. W. Duffus, vice president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Cincinnati; and Wallace A. Boesch representing the Ohio Division of Building and Loan Associations of the Ohio Department of Commerce.

Robtown Vacation
Bible School Set

Vacation Bible School for the entire family will be held at Scioto Chapel United Methodist Church at Robtown for five days June 5-9 from 7 to 9 p.m.

Classes are open for all ages from 2-years old through adults. Those wishing to attend should contact Mary Ellen Downs, Rural Route 1, Orient, for enrollment by May 28.

The theme of this year's school will be "We Worship God". Special features in addition to the usual crafts and Bible school teaching will be a puppet show, baseball game contest and a camp-out session for the youth class.

PRESENTATION — Mrs. George Hamrick accepts a Department of Highway Safety departmental certificate and transistor radio she was awarded for being named county winner in the 1972 Ohio Traffic Safety Slogan Contest. Presenting the award is Dick Barbree (left), field representative of the 6th District of Ohio and Clarence Radeliffe (right), Ernest Weaver, (far right), 11-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Weaver, was honored as the county's 16-year-old and under winner.

Find 17-Year-Old Voted In Cincy Despite Ruling

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Hamilton County Board of Elections is trying to determine how a ballot was cast in the May 2 primary by a certain youth who is only 17.

The board confirmed Thursday that a Democratic ballot was cast by Harry Rosenbluth, one of three plaintiffs in a suit seeking permission for 17-year-old youths to vote in primaries in Ohio if they would be 18 by the time of the general elections.

Among other things, board of elections director Daniel Ruchmann said he would recommend that the board call the suburban Springfield Township teenager to question him.

Election officials said the youth had a registration card in the poll book, but they could not say how it got there. No workers at the polling place challenged his right to vote.

Neither the youth nor his father would comment on the situation.

Mrs. Rosenbluth said, "If there was a registration card for him in the book, I assure you he voted."

Mrs. Rosenbluth is a member of the League of Women Voters here. Through her the teenager became one of the plaintiffs in the suit filed in U.S. District Court here in February.

The plaintiffs contended they would be denied the right to help select candidates in a primary election while they would

Sales, Vehicle
Tax Receipts
Increase

Sales Tax collections in Pickaway County for the period from April 3 through April 28 were $45,368.21 according to a report from the office of Gertrude Donahay, treasurer of the state.

This is an increase of 24.75 per cent over a similar period a year ago. Collections for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1971 now total $608,390.87 compared to $536,610.76 reported a year ago.

Motor vehicle tax collections during April totaled $69,281.62, an increase of $11,343.07 over collections for the same month a year ago. This is an increase of 23.17 per cent.

Motor vehicle tax collections for the year total $519,942.41. A year ago collections were $407,726.37.

USE THE CLASSIFIEDS

County Safety Slogan Winners

Two Pickaway Countians, a fifth grader at Nicholas Drive elementary school and a teacher in the Logan Elm school district, were honored Thursday afternoon for winning the county part of the 1972 Ohio Traffic Safety Slogan Contest.

Ernie Weaver, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Weaver, 409 Lancaster Pike, was honored for winning the county 16-year-old and under contest. Dorothy Hamrick, wife of George Hamrick, 420 Glenmont Court won the adult category.

Ernie's slogan, "Keep it in condition for the safety mission," won him a Department of Highway Safety departmental certificate and a $5 award from the Ohio Association of Insurance agents.

Terry Rambarger, Cardington, was judged state 16-year and under winner for "Belt your wife, save your life." He will be honored during traffic safety day.

Mrs. Hamrick, who stressed the need for bicycle safety in an informal discussion following her presentation, commended H clubs, the Sheriff's Department and police for informing the public on bicycle safety in general.

She was presented a departmental certificate and a transistor radio for her slogan, "Safe Driving — its the living end."

Adult winner was C. Edward Miller of Philo, whose slogan "Let's not meet by accident" won him the state's "1" license plate.

Bell Sees
Work Cut

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. says the 14-month lag between its application for new rates and the first scheduled hearing before the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio could force the utility to abandon some of its construction programs.

Ohio Bell President Frederick R. Eckley said Thursday the company was concerned and disappointed because of PUCO's decision not to hold a formal hearing until October even though the application for new rates was filed last August.

Eckley said the company is being forced to operate at 1972 costs with 1968-1969 rate levels and that further delay in holding the hearing "could well force Ohio Bell to have to cut back its construction program which provides the telephones, central offices and electronic switching equipment that makes good service possible."

The utility had budgeted $268 million for construction in 1972 and $298 million next year.

"It is imperative," Eckley said, "that we get ... a decision as soon as possible so that we can continue to provide Ohio Bell customers with the kind of telephone service they are accustomed to expect."

Heidelberg Set
To Graduate 278

TIFFIN, Ohio (AP) — Heidelberg College will graduate its largest class ever in commencement ceremonies May 28.

The college said bachelor's degrees will be conferred on 278 undergraduates and that an honorary doctor of laws degree will be presented to Richard C. Pfeiffer, president of Tiffin University here.

A spokesman said Pfeiffer, the immediate past moderator of the United Church of Christ to which Heidelberg is related, is being recognized for his "leadership in education and religion."

PARC Hears Clark County Officials

Dr. Fred Mueller and Mr. Wayne Lawhorn were the speakers at the Pickaway Assn. for Retarded Children meeting Tuesday Night.

They are the administrators of the Hope School and the Clark County Residential Center for the mentally retarded.

Dr. Mueller told the audience of 60 representatives of service clubs in the county and interested citizens how the school came about in 1952. Since then a workshop and residential center have been added as the need arose.

The workshop has been successful in not only training the students to do something with their time, but has placed 50 students in jobs in the community. This has been a very successful arrangement for all concerned.

Lawhorn showed many slides of the Residential Center residents and the employees. The homelike atmosphere is stressed complete with posters on the walls and a recreation center with a pool table and ping pong tables.

The entire group was impressed with the genuine concern these gentlemen had for the welfare of the children. Even the nurse is required to wear street clothes to detract from the institution-type home.

The school is open to all mentally retarded in Clark County and the Residential Center has facilities for 48 at this time. There is a plan for expansion in the future but the emphasis is placed on a home for those who have none and no one to provide one for them. This necessitates keeping the home small enough to give the individual attention the children need.

Savings, Loan Group Elects District Officers

Richard H. Wilson, president and managing officer of the First Federal Savings and Loan of Newark is the new president of the 12 county District No. 40 of the Ohio Savings and Loan League.

Wilson was elected May 17 at the annual spring conference held this year at the Ramada Inn North of Columbus. Savings and loan associations from the counties of Franklin, Delaware, Union, Knox, Coshocton, Muskingum, Perry, Licking, Fairfield, Pickaway, Fayette and Madison were represented at the meeting of over 200 savings associations' executives.

Wilson as president of the district succeeds John G. Lambert, chairman of the board and managing officer of State Saving of Columbus.

Also elected was Kenneth R. Elshoff, president and managing officer of Railroad Savings and Loan of Columbus, who was elected district vice president. E. D. Lorenz, president and managing officer of Citizens Federal Savings and Loan of Marysville was elected district secretary.

Speakers at the sessions were: David A. Vetter of Portsmouth, president of the Ohio Savings and Loan League, which represents the $15 1/2 billion Ohio industry; Joseph E. Linville of Columbus, executive vice president of the Ohio League; P. W. Duffus, vice president of the Federal Home Loan Bank of Cincinnati; and Wallace A. Boesch representing the Ohio Division of Building and Loan Associations of the Ohio Department of Commerce.

Find 17-Year-Old Voted In Cincy Despite Ruling

CINCINNATI (AP)—The Hamilton County Board of Elections is trying to determine how a ballot was cast in the May 2 primary by a certain youth who is only 17.

The board confirmed Thursday that a Democratic ballot was cast by Harry Rosenbluth, one of three plaintiffs in a suit seeking permission for 17-year-old youths to vote in primaries in Ohio if they would be 18 by the time of the general elections.

Among other things, board of elections director Daniel Ruehlmann said he would recommend that the board call the suburban Springfield Township teenager to question him.

Election officials said the youth had a registration card in the poll book, but they could not say how it got there. No workers at the polling place challenged his right to vote.

Neither the youth nor his father would comment on the situation.

Mrs. Rosenbluth said, "If there was a registration card for him in the book, I assure you he voted."

Mrs. Rosenbluth is a member of the League of Women Voters here. Through her the teenager became one of the plaintiffs in the suit filed in U.S. District Court here in February.

The plaintiffs contended they would be denied the right to help select candidates in a primary election while they would

Sales, Vehicle Tax Receipts Increase

Sales Tax collections in Pickaway County for the period from April 3 through April 28 were $45,368.21 according to a report from the office of Gertrude Donahy, treasurer of the state.

This is an increase of 24.75 per cent over a similar period a year ago. Collections for the fiscal year beginning July 1, 1971 now total $608,390.87 compared to $536,610.76 reported a year ago.

Motor vehicle tax collections during April totaled $60,281.62, an increase of $11,343.07 over collections for the same month a year ago. This is an increase of 23.17 per cent.

Motor vehicle tax collections for the year total $519,942.41. A year ago collections were $407,726.37.

County Safety Slogan Winners

Two Pickaway Countians, a fifth grader at Nicholas Drive elementary school and a teacher in the Logan Elm school district, were honored Thursday afternoon for winning the county part of the 1972 Ohio Traffic Safety Slogan Contest.

Ernie Weaver, 11, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Weaver, 403 Lancaster Pike, was honored for winning the county 16-year-old and under contest. Dorothy Hamrick, wife of George Hamrick, 420 Glenmont Court won the adult category. Ernie's slogan, "Keep it in condition for the safety mission," won him a Department of Highway Safety departmental certificate and a $5 award from the Ohio Association of Insurance agents. Terry Rambarger, Cardington, was judged state 16-year and under winner for "Belt your wife, save your life." He will be honored during traffic safety day. Mrs. Hamrick, who stressed the need for bicycle safety in an informal discussion following her presentation, commended 4-H clubs, the Sheriff's Department and police for informing the public on bicycle safety in general.

She was presented a departmental certificate and a transistor radio for her slogan, "Safe Driving — its the living end." Adult winner was C. Edward Miller of Philo, whose slogan "Let's not meet by accident" won him the state's "1" license plate.

Bell Sees Work Cut

CLEVELAND, Ohio (AP) — The Ohio Bell Telephone Co. says the 14-month lag between its application for new rates and the first scheduled hearing before the Public Utilities Commission of Ohio could force the utility to abandon some of its construction programs.

Ohio Bell President Frederick R. Eckley said Thursday the company was concerned and disappointed because of PUCO's decision not to hold a formal hearing until October even though the application for new rates was filed last August.

Eckley said the company is being forced to operate at 1972 costs with 1968-1969 rate levels and that further delay in holding the hearing "could well force Ohio Bell to have to cut back its construction program which provides the telephones, central offices and electronic switching equipment that makes good service possible."

The utility had budgeted $268 million for construction in 1972 and $298 million next year.

"It is imperative," Eckley said, "that we get ... a decision as soon as possible so that we can continue to provide Ohio Bell customers with the kind of telephone service they are accustomed to expect."

Heidelberg Set To Graduate 278

TIFFIN, Ohio (AP) — Heidelberg College will graduate its largest class ever in commencement ceremonies May 28.

The college said bachelor's degrees will be conferred on 278 undergraduates and that an honorary doctor of laws degree will be presented to Richard C. Pfeiffer, president of Tiffin University here.

A spokesman said Pfeiffer, the immediate past moderator of the United Church of Christ to which Heidelberg is related, is being recognized for his "leadership in education and religion."
